How the Men on the British Firing Line Are Fed as They Fight

Drawn by A. C. Michael from a sketch by FREDERIC VILLIERS.

THREE OF ANTWERP FORTS VIGOROUSLY SHELLED ALL NIGHT

Belgian Official Statement Says Defenders Allowed Invaders to Advance Within Close Range, Between Two Works, When They Were Driven Back With Heavy Loss.

By Associated Press.

ANTWERP, Sept. 30, via London.—An official statement issued by the Belgian general staff says:

"A vigorous German bombardment of Forts Woelhem, Wavre and St. Catherine, which was continued throughout the night, abated at 8 o'clock this morning. The assailants did not succeed in silencing the guns of the Belgian forts nor in any way lowering the morale of the garrisons.

"At no point did the German infantry move against our first lines of defense. Only one attempt was directed against Forts Liezele and Broedonk. Our troops holding positions between these works, allowed the enemy to advance until they were within close range, when the artillery and infantry, working in a remarkable combination, showed the attacking column with a hail of projectiles which threw their ranks into disorder and compelled a precipitate retreat. This attempt cost the Germans dearly and was not repeated. In short, the events of the day confirm the confidence of Belgians in the power of resistance of their national redoubt."

American Graphically Tells of Battle Aftermath in Belgium

LONDON, Sept. 30.—While driving from Brussels to Gramont, where they purposed taking a train for Ostend, Edgar Allen Cantrell of Newport, Ky., and his invalid wife went through a hail of bullets, one of which killed their driver. The two Americans were left with their car overturned in a ditch and at the mercy of a German uhlans, who let them pass, however, on seeing their credentials.

Cantrell, who with his wife reached London today, gives a graphic picture of the state of Belgium since the German invasion. He says the stench from the shallow burial trenches is terrible and that the bodies in these graves are often cut up by the heavy wheels of passing artillery. The railroads generally are marked by overturned locomotives. The forts of Liege, Cantrell said, look as if they had been shattered by a terrible earthquake. He passed German soldiers feeding refugee peasants on bread and soup. Near Brussels he saw a trainload of prisoners. The Germans allowed the people to give food and

British Seize and Pay for

Copper Consigned to Krupp

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Dispatches received at the British Embassy today state that two cargoes of copper consigned to the Krupp works in Germany from the United States were seized and diverted to England. It was believed the copper was to be used in the construction of torpedoes. Payment of the full value of the cargoes was remitted to the American shipper. British officials here pointed out that it was the aim of their Government that such seizures should not result in loss to American interests and that full payment would always be made for diverted cargoes captured and used by England.

30,000 Carrier Pigeons Put

at Disposal of British

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Thirty thousand carrier pigeons for use in the national mail service have been placed at the disposal of the Government by homing pigeon societies in Birmingham.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

Heavy Gale on the North Sea;

Germans' Bodies Washed Ashore

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 30.—A heavy gale is sweeping over Denmark and the North Sea. All along the German coast there has been considerable damage. German air maneuvers in the neighborhood of Kiel are reported abandoned. A telephone message from the west coast of Jutland says a number of bodies of German sailors were washed ashore this afternoon north of Esbjerg. The telegraphic communication is cut.

Kaiser's Pedigreed Stock Said to Be a Russian Prize

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Star from Petrograd says that among the remarkable war trophies arriving at Smolensk is the entire stock of Emperor William's famous pedigree cattle and stud horses captured by the Russians from the Emperor's estate at Rominten in East Prussia. They were taken to Moscow and presented to the Russian Agriculture Institute for distribution to agricultural breeding associations.

ITALY PROTESTS TO AUSTRIA AGAINST FLOATING MINES

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—"As a result of the sinking of an Italian fishing boat near Ancona by an Austrian floating mine," telegraphs the Rome correspondent of the Evening News, "the Italian Government has instructed its Ambassador at Vienna to enter an energetic protest against the mines which prevent free and safe navigation of the Adriatic."

(Ancona is a seaport of Central Italy on the Adriatic, 150 miles northeast of Rome. Next to Venice, it is the principal Italian port on the Adriatic.)

Italy Soon to Have an Army of 1,300,000 Men Ready.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The report that the 1885, 1886 and 1888 classes of Italian reserves will be called to the colors early in October, has been confirmed by several Italian newspapers, according to the correspondent of the London Daily Mail at Venice. Eleven first category classes will then be under the flag and will total 1,300,000 men.

NOTED MUSICIANS FIDDLE IN CAFES TO EARN LIVING

War Spoiled Concert Tour—Schedules, Impoverished Some Artists.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Standard has the following from its correspondent at Copenhagen: "The fact that Fritz Kreisler, the famous violinist, who is a Lieutenant of the Austrian army, has been wounded, makes it interesting to know how other celebrities in the world of music are occupying themselves during this period of enforced inactivity caused by the war. Ignaz Friedman, a noted pianist, who had been guaranteed $27,500 for a concert tour through Germany and Austria, will now go to Italy to try his luck as a composer. His wife is a Russian of the Tolstoy family, and he will not expose her to a longer stay in the German capital.

Bismund, the pianist and composer, is in despair. He shut himself in his rooms in Berlin, declaring he would not see anybody. He had engagements for the coming season worth $50,000, which were all canceled.

Eisenberger, who fled from Belgium, where he earned a fortune as a teacher of music, has left everything behind him and is now earning about $15 a month by playing every night at a small restaurant in Berlin. He was arrested as a Russian spy, and was detained several days because he had not his papers with him.

Gerowaki, who recently purchased and furnished a castle near Brussels fled almost penniless. Zador, the baritone, who made about $15,000 in the United States last winter, is in Berlin. He has, unlike many of his colleagues, invested his money safely. Joseph Weiss, one of Germany's best pianists, is playing at a third rate music hall to get a living.

ALLIES' COLUMNS WORKING NORTHWARD TO CUT OFF VON KLUCK

French Right Wing Advances South of Verdun, After Severe Battles—Germans' Vigorous Attack on Tracy-le-Mont Is Repulsed With Heavy Losses.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS, Sept. 30, 2:57 p. m.—According to the official bulletin on the war, given out in Paris this afternoon, the turning movement of the allies north of the Somme is developing rapidly. A German attack on Tracy-le-Mont in that region has been repulsed with heavy losses. The text of the statement is as follows:

FIRST.—On our left wing, north of the Somme, the action continues to develop more and more towards the North. Between the Oise and the Aisne, the enemy has delivered a vigorous attack on Tracy-le-Mont. To the northeast of the Forest of L'Aigle the Germans have been repulsed with heavy losses.

"SECOND.—On the center, there is relative calm along the entire front, which extends from Rheims to the Meuse. Between the Argonne and the Meuse we have made slight progress.

"In the Woerthe district, there have been severe battles. Our troops have advanced at several points, notably to the east of St. Mihiel.

"On our right wing in Lorraine and the Vosges, there has been no change.

"In Galicia the efforts at sorties made by the Austrian garrison at Przemyśl have failed. The Austrian armies continue to retreat in disorder, losing many prisoners and much artillery and war material. At Mount Dufok, south of Przemyśl, in the Carpathians, a Russian detachment has defeated a Hungarian brigade and penetrated into Hungary."

BERLIN, Sept. 30, via London, Sept. 30, 11:41 a. m.—A report given out at army headquarters today says:

"There has been general fighting on our right wing in France, but nothing decisive. The center is quiet. The French advances in the vicinity of Verdun and Toul have been renewed."

London Expects Good News

LONDON, Sept. 30.—In the seepage of rumors through the watertight censorship, London believed as early as yesterday afternoon that it had found a hint of a big piece of good news soon to be announced.

The hard-hammered army of Von Kluck upon the German's right wing is believed to have stood to the point of human endurance, and the English public fully expects some great stroke of arms to eliminate this stubborn factor from the contest.

While the censorship has tightened up notably in the last few days both here and in Paris, the hopefulness here has increased as it has in the French city.

The official bulletin from Berlin, which was made public today before either Paris or London spoke, was pessimistic in tone and acknowledged a French advance near Verdun.

A Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. last night said:

"It is rumored here that the German right has been entirely broken and is now pursued by the allies."

The British censor permitted the dispatch to pass, but refused to vouch for it.

The Daily Chronicle's correspondent in a dispatch heavily censored yesterday said:

"The pale gleam of today's sunshine is nothing to the smile that irradiates the faces of those in the Hotel des Invalides, where the military government of Paris has its office.

"It has been a bitterly long wait for good news and the relief is extraordinary. The public must still wait a little for the details, but our dutiful censors will hardly deny me the satisfaction of stating that the worst is over, the best may be hoped for."

The Ghent correspondent of the Daily Express has sent the following dispatch:

"Persons arriving from Brussels say that the Germans are preparing to move the administrative headquarters of the military government of Belgium to Namur. This is taken to mean that the Germans are getting ready for the next stand nearer their own frontier."

The Official Press Bureau issued last night the following regarding the operations in Northern France:

"There is practically no change in the situation. The allied left have had some heavy fighting, but they are well holding their own."

RUSSIANS FIERCELY ENGAGE GERMANS ALONG NIEMEN

New Attempt by the Kaiser's Troops to Cross River Fails—Four Army Corps Fighting on Each Side and Russians Are Reinforced Constantly.

AUSTRIANS JOIN NEW GERMAN FORCE

Combined Army Already Has Been in Contact With Enemy Along the Carpathian Tarnow-Cracow Front.

By Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 30.—An official communication issued at Petrograd and received by the Havas Agency says:
"In the region of Osowetz and Drusienki, on Sept. 28, the Russians attacked the Germans furiously. A new attempt by the Germans to cross the Niemen failed and a violent combat took place for the possession of the northern routes of Augustow (in Suwalki), about 10 miles from the German frontier. This town is occupied by Russian troops.
"In Galicia the Austrian rear guard has suffered another defeat near Douklova and abandoned their cannon and wagons.
"In the region of Krasno, Galicia, the Russians have taken 20 prisoners belonging to 22 different regiments."

FOUR ARMY CORPS ON EACH SIDE

Russians Are Reinforced Constantly and Repulse Germans at Several Points

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A dispatch from Rome to the Exchange Telegraph Co., dated Tuesday says:
"A Petrograd message states that a fierce battle between the army of Gen. Tennenkampf and that of the German Gen. von Hindenburg has been raging since Sunday morning along a front extending from Groine to Dusenki, on the Niemen River. Four army corps have been engaged on both sides, and the Russians are being constantly reinforced from Vilna. The Russians have already repulsed the Germans at several points."
"It is officially announced at Vienna, according to another Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., that a junction has been effected between the new German army and the remnants of the Austrian army which fought in the Galician battle. The new combined army is taking up a position and already has been in contact with the Russians along the Carpathian-Tarnow-Cracow front."

Germans Fortifying Heights.
"The Germans are fortifying and strengthening the heights south of the Government of Kielce, Russian Poland, which command the Galician and Silesian frontiers, apparently to cover a German advance through Silesia and to aid the Austrians in the defense of Cracow," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Reuter Telegraph Co.
"It is stated that the German troops mostly belong to the Landsturm. Heavy fighting in that region may be expected soon. Owing to the boggy ground, the heavy guns of the Germans can be placed only on railway embankments."
"From the latest events in Galicia, and along the Carpathians, the conclusion is drawn that the Austrian army has abandoned Hungary to its fate and has shifted the route to Budapest to be defended by the Hungarian national troops," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. The dispatch continues:
"The Austrians continue to retreat before the pursuing Russians and appear to have given up not only the defense of their country in general, but also to have decided to abstain from further independent action. They are rapidly hurrying on to Cracow to join the fighting with the Germans and apparently intend to become a mere component part of the German army."
"Having passed the most difficult part of Ugek Pass in the Carpathians after abandoning the Honveds (Landwehr) from three positions, the Russian troops have

The St. Louis merchants, realizing the big week of festivities before them, including the all-important V.P. ### SLEPT IN BOOTS IN KAISER'S MANSION

LONDON, Sept. 30.—TIMES dispatch from Petrograd says that after the capture of Tilsit, East Prussia, the Russians occupied the estate of the German Emperor, which comprises a model stud farm and an enormous garden such as the Russian soldiers never before had seen. The exhausted soldiers lay down on the carpets and slept soundly.
The following morning the men laughed heartily at the idea of sleeping on carpets in their boots, remarking: "Thank you, William, we slept well, but nevertheless we shall fight against you."

Col. Gordon Is Alive, Prisoner in Germany

LONDON, Sept. 30.—COL. GORDON of the Gordon Highlanders, previously reported killed, is a prisoner in Germany. The information was conveyed through Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to the Gordon family.
Col. Gordon, who won the Victoria cross in the Boer War, was in command of the Gordon Highlanders early in September. They advanced through a German detachment in the mistaken belief that it was a French picket and many of the Highlanders were shot down. One of the regiment, who escaped, said he had seen the body of his Colonel among the dead.

only some 10 or 15 miles to descend before reaching the Hungarian plateau, where there is not a single fortress or fortified position except such as may be hastily improvised in the form of earthworks by the Hungarian defenders.
"A message from Vienna says the Russians are in possession of all the railways in the district of Premysl and are advancing rapidly in two lines," says a dispatch from the Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. The correspondent continues:
"The northern column (of Russia) has made an assault on Tarnow, the last obstacle between it and Cracow and distant from the latter place only 30 miles. The southern column, after occupying Sanek, has advanced westward with the intention of cutting off the retreat in that section of the Austrian army which is being driven southward."
"Indications are that the Russians do not intend to capture Cracow, but to leave it cut off and surrounded and then to advance toward Breslau, hoping to join the Russian center now in Poland."

Austrians Surrender Eastern Galicia Control to Russians.
PETROGRAD, via London, Sept. 30.—A dispatch received here from Lemberg, Galicia, declares that all the prominent Austrian provincial and city officials, together with the judges, the Archbishops of all the churches, and the Rabbis, attended the establishment of Russian civil government over Eastern Galicia and the assumption of the office of Governor-General by Count Bobrinsky.

M. Rutovskiy, Mayor of Lemberg, informally surrendering the government, spoke in Polish.
"With our co-operation have the Austro-Hungarian troops left Lemberg without firing a shot. There was no struggle here, thanks to our efforts. We believe Your Excellency has been informed that your troops found here a German advance through Silesia and to aid the Austrians in the defense of Cracow," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Reuter Telegraph Co.
"It is stated that the German troops mostly belong to the Landsturm. Heavy fighting in that region may be expected soon. Owing to the boggy ground, the heavy guns of the Germans can be placed only on railway embankments."
"From the latest events in Galicia, and along the Carpathians, the conclusion is drawn that the Austrian army has abandoned Hungary to its fate and has shifted the route to Budapest to be defended by the Hungarian national troops," says the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. to the Havas Agency, the Servian troops have retaken Semla in Slavonia, opposite Belgrade. This assures them the advantage of being able to take the offensive.
After Semla was first taken by the Servians, it was officially reported as having been evacuated by them for strategic purposes.
Austrians Take Refuge in Sarajevo.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Co. from Cetinje says the Montenegrins and Serbian troops marching on Sarajevo occupied Pratsina Sunday. The enemy's forces, which had covered the route to Sarajevo, says the dispatch, have taken refuge in Sarajevo, which is expected to make only a short resistance.
Another Reuter dispatch from Cetinje says the Montenegrins Monday occupied all the enemy's entrenchments around Gorasda, 29 miles southeast of Sarajevo, and pursued the Austrians, who took to flight.
A dispatch from Nish, Serbia, to the Reuter Telegram Co. says it is the eastern theater of war, the Serbian troops engaged in the Bosnian advance have captured San Beak. They also seized an Austrian train of 16 cars, six of which were loaded with ammunition.

Berlin Says Russian Assaults in Suwalki Failed.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—A Reuter dispatch from Berlin, via Amsterdam, brings the following official announcement:
"The Russian assaults in the Government of Suwalki failed. Heavy artillery yesterday began a bombardment against the fort of Osowenec."

German Warships Approach Russian Coast; Are Fired On.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—A dispatch from Petrograd to the Reuter Telegram Co. says:
"An unconfirmed telegram from Mitau, in the Russian Baltic provinces, says that German warships have appeared several times since the war began in the waters off Windau, a seaport of Russia, in Courland, on the Baltic Sea."
"A large fleet with transports appeared on Sept. 24, but soon disappeared in a southerly direction. On Monday afternoon 18 German destroyers and a cruiser came fairly near the coast and sent two boats to make soundings near Backhoffen Lighthouse 11 miles south of Windau. The Russian forts fired on the boats, which suffered some loss. The German destroyers then fired the lighthouse and afterward put to sea."

Italian Foreign Minister, Ill, Hints Important Event Is Near
ROME, via Paris, Sept. 30.—The condition of Marquis di San Giuliano, Minister of Foreign Affairs, although somewhat better, is always grave. He is constantly nursed by his daughter-in-law, the Marchioness Santa Margherita.
"It is asserted that in a moment of discouragement recently, he exclaimed: 'I wish I could live 10 weeks more.' This is taken to mean that the Minister feels that, within 10 weeks, something very important and vital for Italy will occur, but that far no one has dared to question him regarding the matter."

Map of French Turning Movement Against Von Kluck

The broad shaded line marks connected positions which Gen. von Kluck is defending. Line of flags from St. Quentin north follows his extreme western line of communications—one of the railroads which brings the vast supplies required for his 200,000 to 300,000 men. Heavy black line is the allies' line in force. The English are in the region between Soissons and Ribecourt. Arrows indicate approximately heads of French flanking columns.
In the early days of the great battle, the north and west end of Gen. von Kluck's major line was Cambrin. He was then facing south. The incessant hammering of the allies has spread and bent his line until his right flank has been stretched 50 miles or more and is now at right angles to his center. The allies advance columns are north of his main line, in their effort to cut his railroad and get behind him.

make any definite statement until the result of today's (Tuesday) battle is known. In any case, the town is well provisioned and defended. The German losses in the last few days must have been enormous. Certainly many thousands have fallen."

Germans Bombard Lierre, Nine Miles From Antwerp.
AMSTERDAM, via London, Sept. 30.—The German army has begun the bombardment of the first line of defense of Antwerp, according to dispatches received by the Amsterdam papers. Moll, which is an important railway junction near the Dutch border, was occupied by the German troops and yesterday the Germans began to bombard Lierre, nine miles southeast by east from Antwerp. They also continued their bombardment of Forts Walher and St. Catharine. It is believed heavy Austrian artillery is being used.
Lierre, according to a message to the Handelsblad, has been under shell fire since early morning. The people at first hid in the cellars, but subsequently fled to Antwerp, being joined by fugitives from the surrounding villages. It is reported that many houses have been destroyed and some of the inhabitants killed and wounded. One shell fell on a hospital, killing nine persons. The town has a population of more than 25,000.

English Fear of Attack Grows
With Antwerp in Hands of Germans, Zeppelin Raid Might Be Made.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—The fear of a German attack on England, which has existed since the war began, has been made much more immediate by an announcement that the Germans are attacking Antwerp.
With Antwerp in the hands of the Germans, a naval attack on the British coast would be much more easily undertaken than at present. There is even less doubt that a Zeppelin raid on London would be made from Antwerp as a starting point.
The natural course for England would appear to be the sending of reinforcements by sea to Antwerp. But here an issue of respect for the neutrality of Holland arises. To reach Antwerp, which is on the River Scheldt, British transports would have to pass through the waters of the Dutch Scheldt, as the territory on both sides of the river at its mouth belongs to Holland. The Dutch are on guard against such a move, and English sentiment would be strongly against taking a step which would bring on England a reproach like that which England now charges against Germany.
On the other hand, if the Germans take Antwerp, they cannot make use of its harbor without a similar violation of Dutch neutrality. The Dutch have pre-

Men From Fleet Take Field Guns Abandoned by Germans at Lao-Che.

By Associated Press.
TOKIO, Sept. 30.—It is officially announced that a portion of the Japanese fleet has landed a force which has occupied Leache harbor in the neighborhood of Tsingtau. They took four field guns abandoned by the Germans and afterward held the place with a small part of the force.

Beauty of Rheims Cathedral

Gone Forever, Says Architect
PARIS, Sept. 30.—The artistic beauty of the Cathedral of Rheims, which suffered in the German bombardment of that town, never can be restored, in the opinion of the Whitney Warren, the New York architect, who has just returned from Rheims.
Mr. Warren, who is a corresponding member of the Institute of France, was given the privilege of visiting the cathedral. His investigation has no official character, but the result of his observations will be communicated to Myron T. Herrick, American Ambassador to France.
That anything remains of the cathedral, said Mr. Warren, "owing to the strong construction of what might be called the carcass of the cathedral, whose walls and vaults are of a robustness which can resist even modern implements of war."

Belgians Leave Food for Germans, Then Evacuate Alost.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Belgians (Belgium) correspondent of the Daily News, in a dispatch dated Monday, asserts that, by order of the military authority, Alost, a town of nearly 40,000 inhabitants, was evacuated by the civilian population before the Germans took possession of the place Monday.

"When the Germans entered Alost today it was as quiet as a sepulchre," says the dispatch. "The German advance guard found the doors of all the houses open, all food in the larders ready to be eaten, all wine ready to be drunk—everything that the army could desire to satisfy its wants—but the occupants of the houses were missing."
"Imperative orders came Sunday night for every person in Alost and surrounding villages to leave Monday morning for Ghent. Today as far as the eye could see the broad highway teemed with painfully moving people and here tonight are many thousands of them herded on straw in the Palais de Fêtes."

The correspondent of the Post at Antwerp, telegraphing regarding the attack on the outer forts there, says:
"The bombardment of our outer forts, which developed Tuesday, had a lamentable result at Duffel, 13 miles south of Antwerp. The German shells and shrapnel was at the station awaiting a train in which to leave the shell area. Twenty German shells fell into the station and the crowd of refugees, men, women and children, were almost annihilated."
"An armored train of engineers and soldiers advanced near Duffel and did great execution among the German outposts."
"The position now shows clearly that the Germans contemplate a heavy artillery attack on Antwerp, and probably as a prelude to the Government's ultimatum to Japan as to release the German army now covering the fortress. Their plan probably will be to use siege artillery."

Germans Ready to Agree to Spare Antwerp.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Co. from Amsterdam states that a telegram from Brussels, reaching Amsterdam by way of Berlin, says:
"In the battle around Malines the German artillery was instructed not to bombard the town, in order to spare the civilian population. The Germans themselves threw heavy shells into the town from Fort Woelheim."

The commander of the German troops around Antwerp announces his readiness to make the first agreement with the Belgian Government.
"If the Belgian military authorities will agree not to use the monuments of the city and particularly the steeples of the churches for military purposes, the Germans will spare these monuments as far as possible while using the high explosive power of modern shells."

Germans Busy Night and Day Arming Their Fleet.
COPENHAGEN, Sept. 30.—Travelers arriving here from the Kiel Canal say the Germans are busy placing new ordnance, which the Krupp works has been experimenting with for the last two years, on the armored cruisers and dreadnaughts.
The canal is described as being crowded with warships, including the largest battleships. The armaments are being put in place and long trains arrive continuously with immense guns for the ships.
The Germans are reported as declaring that the whole fleet will soon be ready to fight.

Antwerp Garrison Said to Have Repulsed Germans in Sorties.
LONDON, Sept. 30.—A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Co. from Amsterdam says the Telegraf has received this message from Antwerp:
"From various points the garrison made sorties and repulsed the Germans with heavy losses. The bombardment of Fort Woelheim and St. Catharine by the Germans continues. A single attack has been delivered by the Germans on Forts Liele and Bredonk."

BERLIN CHARGES BRITAIN VIOLATED DUTCH NEUTRALITY

Says British Minister at Hague Admitted Bomb Was Dropped in Holland.

"MORATORIUM OF TRUTH."
Herr Ballin Uses This Term in Censuring the British News Agencies.

By Associated Press.
BERLIN, Sept. 30, via London.—Two German factories in Germany, the Jasmund concern at Dresden and the Balchardt factory at Baden-Baden, owned by the Anglo-American Tobacco Co., have been placed under Government control, for the reason that a majority of the capital is held in England.
According to the Lokal Anzeiger, Prince Franz, son of the King of Bavaria, who has the rank of Major-General and is in command of the Second Bavarian Regiment, has been slightly wounded in the thigh. He is now on his way to Munich. Prince William of Hohenzollern, whose daughter is the wife of Manuel, former King of Portugal, has been decorated with the Order of the Iron Cross, first and second class.
Reports from Constantinople made public here declare that, owing to the bellicose attitude of British warships cruising near the Dardanelles, Turkey has closed this waterway.
The people of Holland are described in Berlin as excited by the repeated capture of Dutch ships by the British. The Rotterdam Courant declares that Great Britain is showing utter disregard of the rights of neutral states. It says the Netherlands steamer Sophie, from Rotterdam for New York, was captured by British warships in the channel and taken into Lowestoft. The British Minister at the Hague, it is related, has admitted that a British aviator, flying over the Netherlands town of Maastricht, dropped a bomb, thus breaking the existing neutrality.

A story has been given out in Berlin that Col. Gordon and Lieut. von Kneiss, British officers attached to the Gordon Highlanders, and now prisoners of war in the hands of the Germans, confessed in the course of an official examination that the British Government had supplied them with dum dum bullets for use in automatic revolvers.
Albert Ballin, director-general of the Hamburg-American Steamship Line, has published an article in the Hamburg Nachrichten, in which he declares that the British market will be discredited by the moratorium for a long time to come. He says the cutting of the German cable by the British and the "stupendous lies" of the English and French news agencies have produced a "moratorium of truth for the world overseas."

Washington Discredits Report of Secret Anglo-Japanese Agreement.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Official and diplomatic quarters united today in discrediting a published report of a secret Anglo-Japanese agreement under which Japan was to have a free hand in China, was to be permitted to send immigrants to all parts of the British empire, and to include Canada and Australia, and was to have a British loan of $200,000,000 while Japanese troops were to assist in putting down disaffection in British India.

At the British embassy it was stated that the official statement had been sent from London some time ago to be on the watch for such a report. British officials in China having advised the home Government that the report was to be set in circulation for the purpose of arousing antagonism between the two nations.
It is shown of the alleged loan, but it is stated that if any funds have been raised through the London market it would be in the natural course of financial transactions and without the slightest bearing on the alleged agreement as to Japan's field of activity in China.

As to Japan having a free hand in China, State Department officials recall the statements coming from London at the time of Japan's ultimatum that Japan's field of activity in China would be restricted to the China Sea and the German possession of Kiauchow and would not extend to the mainland of China.

More than this, it will be recalled that when Von Kluck began his rapid retreat from the Marne, the German General staff attempted to dispatch two army corps from Belgium to his aid. Instantly the Belgians sallied forth from Antwerp, came down almost to the gates of Brussels, compelled the recall of the two corps and delayed the reinforcement of Von Kluck for days, necessitating an ultimate weakening of the Alsace-Lorraine armies.

To the disastrous effect of this resistance, it is natural and doubtless correct to trace much of the bad conduct of Germans in Belgium. France was an expected opponent. Toward French cities and towns captured, the Germans have displayed no such ferocity as the Belgian incidents reveal. All through the campaign there is unmistakably a growing rage at the preemption of the little state, not merely in making a resistance, but in crippling German armies at the moment when a tremendous triumph was almost in their hands.
What Napoleon attempted to do in Spain, it now seems that the Germans are about to undertake in Belgium. As British under Sir John Moore were driven back to Corunna and there compelled to take ship, the Belgians are now to be captured or driven out of

Antwerp's Position
Antwerp, down the Scheldt River on waiting transports.
Neutrality involved.
Antwerp itself will be of little present value to Germany, since an attempt to use it as a naval base, even if possible, would involve a violation of neutrality which might bring Holland into the enemy's camp. But Antwerp taken, the Belgian army captured or driven out of Northern Belgium, three army corps, vitally needed to the south, would be released.
Belgium, save for the district about Ostend, would be completely conquered and the last Belgian army disposed of. So long as there is a Belgian army in being, the whole country is likely to continue its irregular warfare, but it is not improbable that the capture of King Albert's army would break the spirit of a gallant little people, utterly crushed at last by the might of German arms.
On the other hand, if German retreat from Northern France follows the battle of the Aisne, the Belgian army will presently be released by the allied advance will operate on the left flank of the Anglo-French army and compel the evacuation of Brussels and all of Northern and Western Belgium, and will be as useful to the general allied cause as was that of Wellington, which flowed over the Pyrenees in 1813 to the enemies of Napoleon.

Attack on Antwerp Is Blow at Belgium, Not England, Expert Says

By the Military Expert of the New York Evening Sun.
Published in St. Louis Exclusively by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, by Special Arrangement With the Sun.

THE present determination of the Germans to press their operations against Antwerp is simply explicable as the desire to rid themselves of an intolerable burden, a present hindrance, and, in case of defeat in France, a possible peril in the future.
What Spain was to Napoleon in the latter days of the First Empire, Belgium has plainly become for the Kaiser, and the very atrocities, sufferings, brutalities of the Belgian campaign are but incomplete repetitions of the terrible Peninsular War, in which Spanish women lived with the men in their ferocity, their courage and their determination to kill invaders at any cost.
In the opening days of the present war, when the little Belgian army was fighting from Liege to Brussels, facing the screen of cavalry which the Germans stretched before their main advance, and the very atrocities, sufferings, brutalities of the Belgian campaign are but incomplete repetitions of the terrible Peninsular War, in which Spanish women lived with the men in their ferocity, their courage and their determination to kill invaders at any cost.

Belgium's Great Service.
Belgium, like Serbia, then, has rendered real service to the cause of her greater allies. At the decisive moment in the Austro-Russian campaign, in Galicia, when Austria needed every battalion at Lemberg, Serbia was not merely holding, but defeating, four of the first line corps on her own frontier. Since Brussels fell, Belgium has similarly occupied the attention of three German corps. Until Antwerp falls, she seems likely to continue to render the most valuable of inestimable assistance now, when Germany needs all her soldiers to meet Russia, France and England.

The capture of Antwerp would have been held impossible two months ago. But German hovers have shattered all preconceived notions of the impossibility of fortresses. Its position, partially surrounded by meadows which can be inundated, together with its proximity to the Dutch frontier, prevents its complete investment. Its sea gate will remain open and supplies will flow in and out steadily. Its position is too strong to be taken by a direct assault. On the other hand, until Antwerp is taken, German security in the West is unattainable. Its two circles of forts, now strengthened during eight weeks of waiting, have been reckoned so strong that the city has been held the rival of Paris as a fortified city. On the outer line, its whole field army is placed, and the army has now been trained in battle. It must also be recalled to desperate resistance by the realization that the fall of Antwerp marks the close of Belgian resistance, and not improbably of Belgian independence. If Germany shall win the great war, German defeat in the West will automatically terminate the siege of Antwerp. German victory will permit the siege to be pressed. Similarly, a continuation of that battle on its present lines will give the Germans the necessary time for their stage operations. Thus it is not impossible that in the next few days we shall see the Belgians making their last stand.

But even if they are now defeated, their contribution to the allied cause cannot be exaggerated, and will not be forgotten in the day of reckoning if Germany's foes ultimately prevail. War is it likely to be overlooked by Germany, if she finally repulses a world in arms.

Edwin Emerson Writes of Conditions in Liege and Namur, and of Stern Measures Caused by Sniping—Saw Buildings Burning and Civilians Awaiting Trial.

By EDWIN EMERSON.
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World (Copyright).

LIEGE, Sept. 20.—It was but a very short time ago that the German government of Liege made official announcement that the German troops, on the previous afternoon, had entered Namur. On to Namur, therefore, was my idea. But how?

Not even with gold could one get hold of a horse or an automobile in Liege. But good luck, which so often has come to the aid of traveling war correspondents, did not forsake me.

Thanks to its friendly aid, I was able that very afternoon to take my seat in one of the wagons, under orders to make a special trip to Namur, of course under the protection of three infantrymen, whose rifles, inspiring respect, peeped above the machine.

We selected the left bank of the Meuse as far as Huy. The beautiful scenery of the valley of the Meuse didn't seem to interest us any. Our thoughts were elsewhere, as we passed along the route and past the many bridges which had been blown up.

Huy bridge was still standing. Even its old stone bridge, in the middle of the town, had been destroyed, but the German soldiers soon made necessary repairs, and it was able to withstand the heavy loads which had to pass over it.

It is necessary and important, because here the road runs only along the right bank of the river, and the railroad on the other side, which connects Liege with Namur, was still out of business. It will be necessary to bring German railway officials there, in order to open the road again, provided, however, the Belgians have not placed further obstructions in the tunnel behind Huy.

The little town of Andenne, where during the last week, snipers attacked night members of the German engineering corps, who were stationed there, and shot them down, is not so badly damaged as had been reported. Only a few down houses at the end of the place are in ruins. Here and there men greeted us, as we passed along, by raising their hats.

We now approached Malzeville, the first of the forts situated on the left bank of the river, where, on previous days, serious battles had been fought.

Rifles Are Destroyed.
Suddenly real evidence appeared before our eyes; large quantities of rifles, unused cartridges by the thousands, pieces of uniforms of all descriptions, knapsacks, cap bandages, all were strewn along the highways, fields and butters. Because it was impossible to take all these rifles along, and for fear they might fall into the hands of the snipers, the German soldiers had destroyed them as best they could. Wherever a rifle is found still in good order, it is promptly put out of business.

Shortly after that, we passed a long train of army wagons on the way to Namur. When we attempted to pass, we were prevented, because the forward part of the road was choked up. But soon an auto, in which was a number of Frenchmen and one Belgian officer, came to our assistance. The long column of moving transports moved to one side a little, in order to give us a chance to pass, until we got on the regular road, once more, which led us to a large pontoon bridge, which the German engineers had built across the river.

We made good use of this newly constructed bridge, crossed it and found ourselves on the outskirts of Namur. We learned that the Belgian officer in the auto which came to our assistance was the commanding officer of the last Belgian fort, which had surrendered that afternoon.

Evidence of Resistance.
Thus we entered Namur at the same time with the prisoner.

The obstructions in the middle of the streets told us that, even from this point, strong resistance had been offered against the invaders; but still more convincing was the presence of a large number of dead soldiers and dead horses along the highway.

The siege did not harm the city proper, since the bombardment was directed against the forts exclusively. But the inhabitants who ventured as far as to their own doors, but not into the streets, appeared to be in a disturbed condition. We soon learned the reason. After their entry, the German troops took possession of the courtyard square. While the Germans, after night had set in, rested with their arms stacked, firing commenced suddenly from many houses and it surely did not look as if it had been started without previous agreement.

All this soon decided the fate of all these buildings and their inhabitants. In order to see for myself, I started for that point. One side of the place was still in flames, and it looked as though the firemen didn't care to interfere. The side opposite the courtyard house was still a smoking mass of ruins. It looked as if there were not a single inhabitant left of those who had occupied these houses. I saw only women and children carrying bundles or pushing baby carriages, in which belongings had been stored. Their eyes were tear-stained. Where are their husbands, fathers, brothers? A fearful question.

Civilians Await Death.
As I peeped through the windows, I saw men and boys huddled together in one of the lower halls of the courtyard.

house, all surrounded by soldiers with rifles in their hands. I was told that they, too, as participants of the night's shootings, were awaiting the result of the court-martial. I talked over it, all with the soldiers who were present during the night assault and who had lost many of their comrades in that way. They were boiling with anger.

"It is nothing to face the enemy in the open," they said to me, "but it is unpardonable to be attacked from behind by an unknown enemy who lurks in the houses of the people, and these people shall be paid now. To such an enemy we shall give no quarter."

The German Commander in Chief had just issued a proclamation in German, French and Flemish to the people of Namur, in view of the happenings of the night before. This proclamation was:

First—All Belgian and French soldiers hiding in the houses must surrender by 4 in the afternoon. Life imprisonment for those who still harbor such men. Every soldier found hiding after 4 in the afternoon will be shot.

Second—All weapons still remaining inside of the dwellings must be surrendered by 4 in the afternoon. Anyone who knows of the existence of weapons and does not promptly notify the authorities will be sent to prison for life.

Third—All streets will be occupied by military and from each street 10 male inhabitants will be taken as hostages. In the event that in any of the streets, shots are fired on the German soldiers, the hostages will be shot.

Fourth—All houses must be kept open after 8 in the evening; at least three windows in each house must be illuminated. Nobody is permitted to shut himself in the streets after 8 p. m.

Fifth—Soldiers in Plain Clothes.
Belgian soldiers were citizens clothes under their heavy and wide military mantles, and after throwing away their knapsacks and coat they kept on fighting in their plain clothes, snipers often joining them in their nightly attacks.

On my way back from the scene of conflagration to the railway station, where the Commandant had established temporary headquarters, I was often held up by women and girls belonging to the better classes, who were standing in the doors of their homes. The horror through which they had passed, and the sleepless nights they had encountered, were plainly written on their faces.

Partly because I was in civilian clothes and wore a white insignia, with the Government stamp on it, which acted as my passport, they took me for a peaceful creature, and therefore stormed me with questions: "Will the shooting continue today? Will they burn more houses today? What shall we do? Is it sufficient to leave the front doors open, or is it necessary that we also leave the doors leading to our rooms open? We would like to get away from here, is that possible? Can we travel to Brussels?"

The people didn't seem to know how it looked elsewhere; that Brussels was already taken and that more than one-half of Belgium was in the possession of the Germans. I tried to calm them, as well as I knew how. I assured them that they were perfectly safe, if they would only keep away from the dangerous elements which shoot at the German troops from the houses. All were unanimous to agree to that—to denounce such acts now.

Government Set Up.
In the dining room of the hotel, where I was about to partake of a hurried supper—because our auto must travel on yet—I met an old gentleman with snow white hair, seated alone in the tumult of German officers. His eyes wandered uncertainly toward the windows of the officers; nervously he drummed with his right hand on the white table cloth. His attempts to talk to one of the officers were unavailing, because they had more important matters to confer about.

Although they were in Namur not quite 24 hours, it was necessary to establish civil government forthwith.

That night our auto had to go further on toward Charleroi. Its main avenue was in ruins also; here, too, a like fate had overtaken the people. Then we passed Charleroi and went out into the country. Night was approaching. We finally got to Fleurus and to a little hamlet southeast of Fleurus. There it was not so nice for us. We could plainly hear the roaring of the big

The excavations are deep enough to conceal the men when standing erect and removed earth, piled on the side from which the enemy is coming, furnishes an additional barrier from two to three feet high. It is in trenches such as these, half full of water, that the opposing troops in the great battle now raging on the Aisne are finding shelter from the hail of rifle bullets and shrapnel.

U-9 May Have Used Dummy Periscopes, a Lay Writer Suggests

THE New York Times has received from a correspondent in East Orange, N. J., and prints, the following:

"With reference to the discrepancy between the British and German reports as to the number of submarines which took part in the sinking of the Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy, the British claiming to have seen five, while the Germans say that only one, the U-9, took part, the matter is possibly explainable by supposing that the Germans employed detached floating dummy periscopes to draw the fire of the cruisers. I have it on pretty good authority that such a dodge has been successfully tried during the maneuvers."

guns; the sky was red from the burning buildings.

"That was our order to turn about and run back toward Namur. We took a wounded infantry officer with us from Fleurus, who had been shot through the right shoulder.

The following morning I went once more to the Courthouse at Namur, while our chauffeur searched for oil for the machine.

Courthouse Destroyed.
The picture there was more gruesome than it appeared the first day. The fire, during the night, had destroyed the Courthouse and many of the nearby houses. In order to halt the progress of the flames, many buildings had been blown up during the night and they formed part of a big mass of debris spread all over the market place.

The German soldiers were engaged to protect the other buildings which had escaped the conflagration.

Our chauffeur had found his oil in the conquered fort. Large quantities of oil and gasoline had been captured, which no doubt had been stored there for war purposes. As a trophy he brought a gold epaulette that had belonged to a Belgian officer. The fort, he told us, was filled with Belgian prisoners, and the officers were so overcome on account of their ill luck that they tore their epaulettes from their shoulders and threw them out of the windows.

As we were about to start on our return trip we were held up by a woman belonging to the Belgian Red Cross. She had 50 wounded Belgians in her quarters, but not a bite to eat for them, not even a drop of milk—nothing. We brought no flour with us. We referred her to the German commandant, but we doubted that he would be in a

The German engineers.

On the Place de Lamont, in the middle of Liege, is the former Bishop's palace, which in the last few years served as a courthouse, and where Gen. Kolewa, the new German Governor of the German fortress, established his headquarters.

The wide place swarmed with German troops. Munition and provision wagons passed by in what appeared an endless chain, but withal there was no confusion. The bells of the Belgian street cars rang, and in the midst of it a Belgian market woman offered her goods for sale, just as though nothing of importance had happened, while German soldiers were eagerly purchasing her stock of plums and red-cheeked apples.

We were escorted to the Governor's palace. In one of the rooms on the ground floor we saw the Mayor and clergyman of a village near Liege, who had called on their people to rise against the invading Germans, and who were waiting to be called to account for their actions.

On the costly cushions and lounges were seated members of the German Landwehr, eating their dinner, which had been cooked for them in the field kitchens stationed in the courtyard without.

I was invited to participate. The fine beef and potatoes tasted mighty good, especially as my stomach had not received any nourishment since 4 o'clock that morning.

But over there at the baker's I had a great laugh. Whenever a war correspondent appears, he is surrounded by soldiers, who ask him all kinds of questions concerning the latest war news. The correspondents are identified by the letter "B" in black, which is marked upon a yellow bandage around a sleeve of the coat. Here I was the storm center of three bakers, who insisted on being told the very latest war news.

Have of German Guns.
We traveled toward the fort of Louvain, and here we could see what havoc the German guns had made. There had been about 30 men with the command, but a guard appeared and showed us the way to a new bridge, just built by

ROME, Sept. 29.—I am informed by a competent source that the delay in the issue of the encyclical of Pope Benedict XV was wrongly attributed to the Pope's continued efforts toward peace, since it is now fully realized that any offer of mediation is out of the question and the Pontiff's appeal for peace, after its first failure, is not likely to be repeated.

His Holiness recently received an autograph letter from Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who admits the impossibility of concluding peace separately from Germany, as the two empires are fighting to defend their existence. The Pope is not discouraged by the Emperor's letter and continues to use his spiritual efforts towards peace, but refrains from taking any diplomatic action.

Noted Historian Discusses Policy of Berlin Government Which Solidified Loose Entente Into an Ironbound Coalition.

By Guglielmo Ferrero.
Eminent Italian Historian and Military Critic.
(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

ON Sept. 5, Sir Edward Grey, British Minister of Foreign Affairs, Paul Cambon, French Ambassador and Consul A. Benckendorff, Russian Ambassador in London in the name of their respective Governments, signed, in London, the convention by which France, England and Russia mutually pledged themselves not to make peace with the German and Austro-Hungarian empires, unless by common consent and in unison.

This notice has made a tremendous impression in Europe. Rightly or wrongly, many persons in neutral countries were inclined to believe that the structure of the Triple Entente was not too solid. It was said that England was too selfish to allow herself to be drawn into a war to the death, from which Russia and France would profit more than she. It was said that relationship and dynastic interests allied the royal families at Germany and Russia so closely that Russia could not back France to the end in a mortal duel with Germany.

Today no more doubt is possible. Even the most incredulous are convinced. The Triple Entente, that diplomatic agreement that wavered so many years, has become an iron-bound alliance. A hundred years later Europe again sees the echo of a coalition like that which overthrew Napoleon in 1814. But instead of France, Germany and Austria are now the enemy against which all Europe may be said to be united. The position is reversed.

Result of Obstinacy.
How has this new coalition become possible, a hundred years later, between three great powers so different as France, England and Russia? Between three powers that were for so many years enemies or rivals of each other—France of England, England of Russia?

It may be said that the coalition has been formed because Germany, with singular obstinacy, wanted, at any cost, that it should be formed. For 20 years Germany seems to have been going in search of enemies. She gave umbrage to England by creating a powerful fleet and displaying vast colonial and commercial ambitions. While worrying England, she was not conciliating France. She has rather continued to scare and irritate her.

About 1860 France hesitated for a moment in her national hatred between England and Germany. The new generation which had not seen the war was forgetting Alsace and Lorraine, and already was beginning to look across the Rhine without animosity. At that very moment Germany raised the annoying question of Morocco, and France, which was no longer disposed to dispute German possession of Alsace and Lorraine, was afraid that Germany was beginning to covet her colonies.

Made Russia Hostile.
At the same time, Germany was irritating and arousing the suspicions of Russia, taking advantage of all her difficulties—especially the weakness that followed the war with Japan—to interfere in her national politics, to impose upon her a commercial treaty to Germany's own advantage, to prevent her from giving autonomy to the Poles to increase German influence at Constantinople and in Turkey.

Lastly, by allowing Austria to fight the Italian element in her provinces and openly supporting her Balkan ambitions, Germany gave birth to suspicions in Italy, thus weakening the Triple Alliance.

As if all that were not enough, when war was declared she threw herself upon Belgium, thereby giving such bloody provocation to England that a duel to the death became inevitable.

How can such a singular mania for multiplying enemies be explained? By a tendency that is fundamental in the German spirit. The Germans have many good qualities, but as Balfour said so well in a recent speech, they understand how to create force better than they know how to use it. In other words, they are more successful in war than in politics, because they lack in thought as well as in action, sense of proportion and of limitations.

Political Myriadism.
Political sagacity is nothing, else but a wide awake knowledge of the limitations of its own power, which restrains a state or a people from venturing upon undertakings that exceed its capacity. It is just this knowledge that the Germans lack; it is at bottom a myriadism, even in politics. As in philosophy, in science, in art, in religion, he tends always to the absolute, to the transcendental, to the unexampled novelty, so in politics, the people and the ruling classes have in recent years let themselves be dazzled by a dream of greatness and of national strength that has blinded their eyes to the numbers and the strength of their enemies.

It is principally for this reason that I do not believe that Germany can issue victorious from this conflict—with honor, in recent years, has let themselves be ever much study she may have prepared for the war, multiplying batteries, casting formidable cannon, elaborating the most spacious places of campaign.

Can all this be enough? I doubt it. No great empire has ever been founded solely upon the power of arms. All the empires that have endured—from the Roman to the British—have been founded upon the power of arms, combined with political sagacity. Even Bismarck, who knew them, repeatedly warned his fellow citizens of this.

How Can Germany Win?
Of this the Declaration of London is a first proof. This annals all the military success that the Germans have achieved, or that they may yet achieve. In France, the Germans have been defeated the French army is one or more pitched battles. What then? Will they besiege or even capture Paris? And then? They may savagely abuse France, but in abusing her they will obtain nothing, except to weaken themselves for the final decisive struggle with England and Russia.

They will have no peace until they have conquered the two Powers, which are arbiters of the conflict far more than is France. And it is impossible to see how they can conquer them, after wearing out the flower of their troops in a long war against France.

Germany's one hope of salvation, by succeeding, in a few weeks, in conquering an honorably, is to get herself out of the war, and then in turning with still fresh troops against Russia. But this hope has utterly fallen with the Convention of London, that opposes an indissoluble coalition to the German ambitions.

Four Garibaldi Officers in French Foreign Regiment

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Among the nominations published in the official Journal today, says the Bordeaux correspondent of the Havas Agency, are those of Giuseppe Garibaldi as Lieutenant-Colonel, Ricciotti Garibaldi as Captain, and Santa and Brino Garibaldi as Lieutenants, all of the First Foreign Regiment. A number of Italian surgeons have been taken into the French army as Surgeon-Majors.

Giuseppe Garibaldi is the grandson and namesake of the liberator of Italy. He is a soldier of fortune, and fought in the British army in South Africa and in Madero's revolutionary army in Mexico. He was entertained at the Nooday Club in St. Louis on his return from the Mexican campaign in 1911, and said in an interview at that time that he was fighting to gain military experience for use in Italy's next war. This war, he said, would be against Austria.

New York British Consul Not Enlisting Men for Army

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Reports that the British consulate in New York was enlisting men for the army were denied last night by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador. He explained, however, that the consul was submitting to medical examination such English subjects as desired to return to England for service.

The Ambassador pointed out that enlistment, which would be in violation of the neutrality of the United States as outlined in President Wilson's proclamation, could not be carried on by any British Consul.

KATY OFFICES STAY HERE

That the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Co. will establish more offices in Parsons, Kan., in order to meet the Kansas statutes, which require an organization incorporated in that State to keep a certain number of offices within the State, was announced today by a high official of the railway.

It was denied, however, that the general offices would be removed from St. Louis, as a dispatch from Independence, Kan., yesterday stated.

How to Cure Rheumatism

Here is a prescription for rheumatism used all over the U. S. for many years and said to be the surest known remedy: "One ounce of Toris compound and one ounce of Sarsaparilla. Put these two ingredients in half pint of whiskey. Use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time." Put the Sarsaparilla in the whiskey and let stand for two hours before adding the Toris. It is better to mix at home. Get ingredients at any drug store. Genuine Toris comes in sealed yellow package put up by Globe Pharmaceutical, Dayton, Ohio.

Bunions and Sore Feet

Don't endure foot agony. Here is surest and quickest remedy known: "Two tablespoonfuls of Calceol compound in warm foot bath three times a day. Right corns and callouses are peeled right off; excess sweating or tenderness is overcome. It acts through the pores and removes the cause. Large box of Calceol twenty-five cents at all drug or general stores. Prepared at Medical Formula Laboratories, Dayton, Ohio. ADV.

$20,000,000 BILL FOR RIVERS SENT TO THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—President Wilson's approval was all that was needed today to make the river and harbor appropriation bill a law. Final congressional action on the bill was taken late yesterday when the House adopted the measure as amended by the Senate carrying a general fund of $20,000,000 for continuing present projects in the discretion of the army engineers. Following the passage the bill was sent on its way to the White House for the President's signature.

As originally passed by the House the bill carried appropriations totaling $43,000,000 for projects throughout the country. As it left the Senate committee the bill carried a total of $33,000,000. As the result, however, of a filibuster led by Senator Burton of Ohio, the Senate adopted a substitute measure appropriating only $20,000,000. In this form the bill was approved by the House.

It is $20,000,000 less than was carried in last year's bill. All attempts to amend the bill in the House, including that to reduce the amount of the appropriations to $5,000,000, were defeated.

LATE RETURNS IN NEW YORK SHOW WADSWORTH GAIN

Seems Victor Over Calder—Sulzer Behind—Hennessy May Run Independently.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—With the receipt of about two-thirds of the up-state vote and practically all of the New York City returns, it appears that James W. Wadsworth Jr. won the Republican nomination for United States Senator over William M. Calder, and that Frederick M. Davenport defeated former Gov. William Sulzer for the Progressive gubernatorial nomination.

Predictions of both victories are based on the constantly increasing gains for Wadsworth and Davenport in up-state returns.

With 1000 districts still to report Davenport was 2200 ahead of Sulzer. Gov. Glynn, District Attorney Whitman and Ambassador Gerard continued to add to their pluralities up-state for the Democratic gubernatorial, Republican gubernatorial and Democratic senatorial nominations, respectively. It appeared that Glynn's plurality would be 125,000; Whitman's plurality probably will be between 50,000 and 75,000; Gerard's plurality will exceed 75,000.

A persistent report is current that John A. Hennessy will make an independent race for Governor despite his defeat by Glynn in the primary.

Virtually complete returns from Greater New York and a large majority of the up-state districts show the following totals in the principal contests:

Democratic, for Governor—Hennessy, 83,272; Glynn, 139,070; Glynn's plurality, 55,835.

Republican, for Governor—Hedges, 42,673; Hinman, 49,001; Whitman, 111,522; Whitman's plurality, 61,521.

Progressive—for Governor: Davenport, 132,994; Sulzer, 121,707; Davenport's majority, 2197.

Republican—for Senator: Hill, 31,924; Wadsworth, 76,332; Calder, 76,504; Wadsworth's plurality, 238.

Democratic—for Senator: Roosevelt, 15,444; McDonough, 16,122; Gerard, 129,351; Gerard's plurality, 83,717.

Wins Nomination for U. S. Senate in Washington by 15 Votes.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 30.—The official State canvass of the primary election returns of Sept. 8 show William W. Black nominated for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket over George Turner by 15 votes.

President Wilson to Support New York Democratic Nominees.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—"The President will support the Democratic nominees," was the reply made to inquiries at the White House with reference to the President's views of the primary elections held in New York State Monday. It was added that the President would not make any speeches in behalf of Gov. Glynn or Ambassador Gerard, candidates for Governor and United States Senator, but would lend his moral support.

SALES OF HORSES NOT NEUTRALITY VIOLATION

Harry B. Hawes Explains Right of Americans to Deal With Anyone Within Country.

Since it has been made known that large purchases of horses have been made in St. Louis by British agents, many German sympathizers have contended that this was a violation of neutrality.

Harry B. Hawes in a speech before the membership conference of the Business Men's League at the Mercantile Club yesterday, explained that any citizen is free to sell within the United States anything he may wish to anyone. If the article is contraband of war the purchaser assumes all the risks of removing it from this country.

Hawes, discussing neutrality, answered some of the questions frequently raised by quoting at length a letter written during the Cuban rebellion by Secretary of State Olney to a banker in doubt as to what constituted a neutral course. In this Secretary Olney pointed out that the Supreme Court has rendered some most positive opinions upon the subject.

To be neutral under these terms, a citizen must not do anything by himself as an individual that is generally forbidden to the nation as a whole. In this way a private banker should not handle funds for use of one of the nations at war. Each citizen helps make up the Government; each citizen would be put in the position of breaking his own word if he broke national regulations.

The Short Road From the Decision to Sell That Real Estate to the Actual Sale of It Is Either a Long or a Short Road—As You Elect.

The shortest road a property owner will ever find, leading to a sale, will be one leading through the Post-Dispatch advertising columns.

There are, often, instances where ONE INSERTION OF AN AD DOES THE WORK. In a majority of instances a limited campaign of classified advertising is sufficient. In rare instances the road stretches out to a longer campaign.

Test your "luck" with an attractive, factual ad of that property of yours, or instruct your agent to do the advertising. You may find the "end of the road" in one day!

"Whirlpool" (Sanitary) Dish Washers

Sold Exclusively by Stix, Baer & Fuller D. G. Co. Housewares Store.

Every housewife will be interested in this new contrivance which makes dish washing a pleasant task.

It cleans with hot suds, rinses with boiling water, sterilizes and dries your dishes in a very few minutes, with few processes and less trouble than any other dish-washing machine heretofore invented and with infinitely better results than are produced by the older method of dish washing.

Kitchen utensils also, no matter how dirty and greasy, may be thoroughly cleaned in far less time than usual.

"The Whirlpool" Sanitary Dish Washer is priced at $18.50

If you wish, you may purchase this machine on deferred-payment plan, paying $2.50 at time of purchase, and $2 thereafter for a period of eight months.

The Whirlpool Dish Washer will be sent to your home for ten days' trial, if you wish.

From the DECISION TO SELL that real estate to the ACTUAL SALE of it is either a long or a short road—as you elect.

The shortest road a property owner will ever find, leading to a sale, will be one leading through the Post-Dispatch advertising columns.

There are, often, instances where ONE INSERTION OF AN AD does the work. In a majority of instances a limited campaign of classified advertising is sufficient. In rare instances the road stretches out to a longer campaign.

Test your "luck" with an attractive, factful ad of that property of yours, or instruct your agent to do the advertising. You may find the "end of the road" in one day!

LUXEMBURG WOMEN SUE MAN FOR SLANDER

$15,000 Asked in Case Growing Out of a Disturbance of the Peace Charge.

Mrs. Minnie Lenhardt, Mrs. Emma Schoemaker and Mrs. Ellen Snyder of Luxembourg, St. Louis County, today, in St. Louis, jointly sued John F. Koehn, 2613 South Broadway, Luxembourg, for $15,000, on a charge of slander.

Koehn was tried on June 23 before Justice Morgan, in Luxembourg, for disturbing the peace of Fred Danneker. It was alleged that on that day the alleged slandorous statement was made. After Koehn was freed of the charge against him the three women attacked him on the street. They were arrested and fined $10 and costs each by Justice Noerper.

They sue New Tea Rooms, 417 N. 7th St., a delightful place to entertain your visiting friends with a dainty luncheon.

Roosevelt at Michigan Convention. BAY CITY, Mich., Sept. 30.—A speech to be delivered this afternoon by Col. Roosevelt was the outstanding feature of the State convention of the Michigan Progressive party here today. Roosevelt, who spent last night in Detroit, was due in Bay City shortly after noon.

SENATOR NELSON JOINS REED ATTACK ON CLAYTON BILL

Republican on Conference Committee Assails Deletion of Drastic Provisions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Senator Knute Nelson, a Republican member of the Conference Committee on the Clayton anti-trust bill, today joined in the attack led by Senator Reed on the conference report on the measure. He assailed the deletion of drastic provisions. Senator Reed yesterday afternoon concluded a two days' speech in opposition to the conference report on the bill, with a final attack upon his colleagues for eliminating specific penalties from the measure. He predicted that the time soon would come when they would be compelled to write into the law more severe penalties for violation of trust laws than had been contemplated originally in the Clayton bill.

During the many hours of Senator Reed's speech repeated roll calls were required to keep Senators in the Chamber for even brief periods. At one time only four remained. Senators Overman of North Carolina and Walsh of Montana took issue with the Senator on many of his charges that the bill lacked punishing provisions.

Conferees are Criticized. The Senator announced that he would move to recommit the bill to the Conference Committee with instructions. Administration leaders declared, however, that the motion to recommit would be lost and the report approved. Senator Reed severely criticized the conferees for striking from the bill his amendment which would authorize the courts to appoint receivers and sell the property of convicted corporations to persons who would restore competition. Dissolution of corporations without sale, he declared, availed nothing. He took the case of the Standard Oil Co. for illustration.

The Story the Ticker Told. "The ticker in Wall street," he said, "told the story of that dissolution in its rising profits."

"We have played the hypocrite," he continued. "We said, when this great Democratic host assembled, we would have a clean path for the common people to tread. Having marched to the hill to the heroic blast of bugles of war, we settled by the camp fire, turning our ears to the seductive notes of 'Home, Sweet Home.' Some of us will hear from home."

TWO MYSTERIES SOLVED BY POST-DISPATCH AD

It Explained to Police the Story of Stolen Watch and Its Surprising Reappearance.

Mrs. Ida Boggs of 2616 Oregon avenue told the police that burglars entered her home last Saturday and stole a gold watch. The following day her foster-sister, Hilda Freher, 15 years old, ran into the house with the watch in her hand. She said she had seen two boys examining it at Jefferson and Chouteau avenues and, recognizing it, redeemed it for 50 cents.

Policemen interviewed Hilda with a view of obtaining a description of the two boys and questioned her closely. She told several conflicting stories and finally admitted she had taken the watch from the house without Mrs. Boggs' permission and had lost it while on her way to visit friends.

Sunday morning the girl read in the Post and Dispatch that her sister's watch had been found by a man residing on Marquette avenue and, without saying anything to Mrs. Boggs, she slipped out to the address mentioned and recovered the watch.

ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING AFTER ARREST, FINED $5

Motor Cyclist Also Accused of Resisting Officer, but Charge Is Dismissed.

Timothy Bahnsen, a piano tuner, of 2341 Whittemore place, was fined $5 and costs in the Dayton Street Court this morning for speeding on a motor cycle Aug. 20 on a drive in Forest Park from De Baliviere to Union avenues.

After Bahnsen was arrested at Union avenue he speeded up his motor cycle and escaped. He was re-arrested at this home the next morning and charges of speeding before and after being arrested and with resisting an officer were filed against him.

The resisting charge and one of the speeding charges were dismissed.

DISMISSAL OF TEACHER FOR MOTHERHOOD UPHELD

Highest New York Court Sustains School Board Action Against Married Woman.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The action of the New York City School Board in dismissing Mrs. Bridget C. Peixotto, the Bronx school teacher, because she absented herself from duty to give birth to a child, was justified by a decision of the Court of Appeals. The lower courts had granted a writ of mandamus for the reinstatement of Mrs. Peixotto, which was reversed by the appellate division.

The decision of that court is now affirmed by the State's highest court. Dissenting opinions were written by Chief Judge Bartlett and Judge Hogan.

DIRECTORS FEEL SURE SYMPHONY WILL GET $12,000

Confident That Friends of the Orchestra Will Make Up
Guarantee in Time.

Directors of the St. Louis Symphony Society are confident that a satisfactory response will meet the appeal published yesterday to raise from $12,000 to $15,000 by subscriptions to enable the society to present its program of popular and symphony concerts scheduled to begin Nov. 6.

Unless this amount is subscribed by Oct. 5, to replenish the annual guarantee fund of $10,000 established six years ago to meet an annual deficit of that amount, the musical program will have to be abandoned for the year. The guarantee fund has dwindled through deaths, removals and the expiration of pledges until it will yield only $17,000 this year.

For several years, two of the society directors, who have declined to allow publication of their names, have made up the deficit from their own pockets. It is the hope now of the managers that a thousand more patrons of the concerts will prevent the death of the famous orchestra, the second oldest in the United States, by pledging $5, $10 or $25 contributions for this and ensuing years.

Sunday Concerts Popular.
Archer W. Douglas, member of the Executive Committee, who has been active in maintaining the orchestra for more than two decades, says the growing popularity of the Sunday popular concerts alone will no doubt bring many responses when it is understood that they may have to be stopped.

"I have observed the progress of the popular concerts since they were commenced in 1906," said Douglas today, "and know that hundreds have become devotees of the best music by attendance. We have experimented by presenting a complete symphony program on Sunday afternoon at the Odeon, without any of the so-called popular airs, and the appreciation was excellent."

Douglas tells an experienced physician friend had with a woman cook in a West End home, to illustrate the interest in the popular concerts by people in all walks of life.

Cook Was Interested.
The doctor was called to treat a sore throat on Friday, and when he made his diagnosis, the cook asked eagerly if she would be well by Sunday.

"I think you may safely invite your 'steady' to call Sunday," said the doctor, amused at her eagerness.

"I don't want to see my beau," replied the cook. "I want to hear that melody in F that is going to be played at the popular concert."

"I have seen young working girls stand in the waiting list to get in at the gallery for 25 cents," said Douglas, "and when the doorkeeper announced that it was full, they had to go away, because they had only saved enough from their small salaries to buy the cheapest seats. We feel confident that those who love the concert as these people do, and have the means to subscribe $5 or $10 to keep them alive, will do so readily."

Subscriptions are being received at the office of the Symphony Society, 1323 Central National Bank Building, Seventh and Olive streets, by Arthur J. Gaines, manager.

"The commercial advantage to St. Louis of the orchestra is scarcely to be overestimated," said Douglas. "Business men of Minneapolis raise $50,000 every year to pay the deficit of the orchestra they support, and it is a good investment, they find."

"The Minneapolis orchestra plays at Columbia, Mo., and in Arkansas, Texas and other points in the great territory at our doorway, and we must do likewise or suffer the consequences. Our tours of Missouri and the St. Louis have been greatly appreciated and have advertised St. Louis more favorably than it could be advertised by any other means."

SIXTH REGIMENT, STATE MILITIA, IS DISBANDED

Command of Col. Oliver, U. S.
District Attorney Here, Falls
Below Strength.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 30.—Adjutant-General John B. O'Meara announced today that he had disbanded the Sixth Regiment of the National Guard of Missouri, commanded by Col. Arthur I. Oliver, United States District Attorney in St. Louis, because the companies comprising the regiment had fallen below the required strength.

The companies at Fredericktown, Caruthersville and Poplar Bluff, which belonged to the Sixth, have been transferred to the Fourth Regiment, with headquarters at St. Joseph. The West Plains company was transferred to the Second Regiment, with headquarters in Jefferson City.

YOM KIPPUR IS OBSERVED

Jews Fast and Attend Special Religious Services Today.

Today is Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, marking the close of the penitential season following the beginning of the new year.

Observance of the day of fasting was begun at all the synagogues and temples last night, with special services and sermons. All who observe the day began their fast at sundown and will partake of no food until sundown today. The fast is followed by a period of fasting, merrymaking and family reunions.

Flat Ware and Carving Sets

Now is an opportune time to leisurely examine and select tableware and carving sets—the exclusive designs shown at Drosten's are worth seeing, whether you intend to purchase now or not. Nothing pleases us more than to have visitors drop in and spend as much time as they care to in merely viewing the thousands of objects of beauty which are displayed in our various sections. It is not expected that patrons will purchase except after several such inspections, when an intelligent idea of the various qualities and the character of the workmanship displayed may be obtained. Drosten's is more of an art exhibit than it is a store.

If you've "planned to do a lot of reading this winter" you may enjoy it more with glasses. Very likely you are one of those who only need them for reading.

If your eyes ever "burn" after an hour's reading, come and see these special glasses. The lenses really rest your eyes, and the cost is small. We have the experience and knowledge necessary to give you the right advice.

MAXIMUM SENTENCE FOR VIOLATION OF PAROLE

Illinois Board of Pardons Fixes New Rule for Convicts Given Early Liberty.

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 30.—Convicts paroled from the State penitentiary who violate provisions under which they are liberated, will be forced not only to return to prison, as has been the rule heretofore, but also to serve the maximum time for the crime for which they were originally sentenced. It was ruled by the Illinois State Board of Pardons yesterday.

Convicts serving a "1 to 30-year" term, for example, if paroled at the expiration of two years and subsequently found to have violated their parole, will be compelled to return and serve 18 additional years.

USES LAWN HOSE ON FIRE

Patrolman Holds Blaze in Check Until Aid Arrives.

Mrs. Emma Goetz, wife of patrolman John Goetz of 323 Devonshire avenue, discovered fire about 9 o'clock last night in the basement of the home of her neighbor, James Smith of 323 Devonshire avenue, who was out of the city. Goetz broke into the Smith home and, attaching the garden hose to a lawn cock, fought the flames while William Van Pelt, secretary of the Municipal Board of Efficiency, living at 323 Devonshire avenue, sent an alarm to the Fire Department. When the firemen arrived Goetz had the flames checked.

BOY 3 YEARS OLD IN FRANKLIN AV. SHOW LIFTS 25 LBS.

George Scheafler Pronounced a Young Samson by Examiners in Contest.

Two hundred and thirty-five babies, from all parts of the city, are being examined this week in the perfect baby contest being held in connection with the fourth annual carnival of the Franklin Avenue Improvement Association. The children range in age from 13 to 48 months. Boys exceed the girls by 35 in the entry list.

The examination includes all manner of physical, intellectual and psychological tests. The clinic is conducted under the direction of Mrs. Frank de Garmo of 618 Washington boulevard. Examination of babies is being made at the clinic headquarters at 409 and 511 Franklin avenue. Before the tests are complete a record as possible is obtained of the babies' history, ancestry and environment.

Following, they are weighed, measured and examined by physicians who also test them for diseases, abnormalities and physical imperfections. The mental tests are then made, which vary greatly with children of different ages. The winners will be selected by a comparison of all these statistics.

Loving Cup for Prizes. The prize-winning boy and girl will each receive a silver loving cup, and every baby entered will get a silver drinking cup and a china cup and saucer.

George Scheafler, 23 months old, was pronounced a young Samson by his examiners yesterday afternoon after he had "chinned" himself on an improvised horizontal bar made of a broom handle and had lifted two flat irons above the level of his knees. His mother, Mrs. George Scheafler Sr., says he can lift a 25-pound dumb-bell above his knees.

Winners Named Monday. Children are brought in in specified numbers each day. All will be examined by Saturday and the winners announced Monday. Besides Mrs. de Garmo, others who are aiding in conducting the clinic are: Dr. James Stewart, supervisor of hygiene in the public schools; Dr. M. Saenger, Miss Louise M. Dierson, visiting public school nurse; F. E. W. Wallin, who is conducting the newly-installed psycho-educational clinic in the public schools; Mrs. William J. Utter, registrar, and Miss Anita Moore, executive secretary of the Improvement Association.

The Franklin Avenue carnival will be held throughout the week in the blocks from Fourth to High streets with right free band concerts and eight free moving picture shows each evening. All merchants along the street have special displays for the week.

"DRY" FLYING SQUADRON STARTS TOUR OF NATION

Prohibition Workers Begin New Political Campaign With Invasion of Illinois.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Under the leadership of Eugene W. Chaffin, former prohibition candidate for President, the Flying Squadron of America began a nation-wide campaign for prohibition today, with Peoria, Ill., the scene of the first demonstration. Approximately 150 cities, including all state capitals and the national capital, will be visited by the temperance workers.

J. Frank Henly, former Governor of Indiana, and several other men who have been prominent politically as well as a number identified with church organizations, are members of the party. The squadron, however, is declared to be affiliated with no political party or organization.

After a three-day campaign in Peoria and three days in Galesburg, Ill., the squadron will invade Kansas City, Mo.

DELANOV'S COMET VISIBLE

May Be Seen by Naked Eye Throughout October.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Astronomers of the Naval Observatory are noting with keen interest the activities of Delanov's comet, which is now visible to the naked eye and which will remain in sight throughout October. It may be observed about 10 o'clock on clear nights at a point directly below the pole star. At that time the comet is low in the sky.

As the night wanes, the comet rises higher in the heaven and in the early morning, between 2 and 4 o'clock, it reaches its greatest altitude above the horizon. That is the best time to observe it.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

EXPORT TRADE IS BETTER

More Than 20,000 Bales of Cotton Shipped in Day.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Commerce between the United States and Europe is rapidly regaining normal proportions. Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department announced last night that in the last several days reports from shipping centers showed material increases in the export trade.

Monday 20,723 bales of cotton were shipped to European points. This is the largest amount shipped in a single day since the war began. Of the 20,723 bales 2280 were exported from New York, 1250 from Savannah and 17,193 from Galveston.

Man, 51, Hurt by Car.

ASSEMBLY OPENS SESSION

Six Members Take Oath Under the New Charter.

Six members of the Municipal Assembly took the oath of office yesterday under the new charter, and the last regular session of the body that has operated since the separation of the county and city in 1875 was convened. The Council and House of Delegates will be the legislative authority under the new charter until next April, when a Board of Aldermen, consisting of 23 members elected at large, but each residing in a different ward, and a President, elected at large, will be chosen.

Driver Hurt as Car Strikes Wagon. Joseph Milley, 33 years old, of 1385 South Thirteenth street, driver for the Hunkins-Willis Lumber and Cement Co., was knocked from his wagon when it was struck by a Cherokee car on the Fourteenth street viaduct this morning. He was taken to the city hospital. His left shoulder was dislocated.

Names Collector for Santo Domingo. WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Clarence D. Baxter of Paterson, N. J., has been selected by President Wilson for Collector of Customs of the Dominican republic, to succeed Walker W. Voss. Officials refuse to discuss reports that Voss had lodged charges against American Minister Shillman.

This Fine Old Gentleman Calls Duffy's "The Elixir of Life"

Male and hearty at the age of 72, this old gentleman has kept well and strong by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for more than a quarter of a century. Read what he says:

"I am seventy-two years old and in perfect health. When I was forty-seven the doctors thought I would die of consumption. I fooled them all—I started to take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and soon grew strong and vigorous. I am able to do hard work every day and can climb six flights of stairs without fatigue. In my opinion there is nothing in the world so good to put vim, vigor and vitality into any run-down person as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I call it 'the Elixir of Life.'"

Mr. H. Stoerbach, 196 East 76th St., New York City.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is responsible for their possessing perfect health in old age. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is nature's true tonic-stimulant. A tablespoonful in the same amount of water before meals corrects defective action of food, increases the appetite, strengthens the heart, gives force to the circulation, relieves insomnia, and brings restfulness to the brain and a vigorous force. It can be obtained by the most delicate stomach.

"Get Duffy's and Keep Well."

Sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk—by most druggists, grocers and dealers, $1.00 a large bottle. Refuse substitutes—accept only a original. Medical booklet and doctor's advice free if you write.

100 SOCIETIES TO GIVE FESTIVAL FOR WAR SUFFERERS

Replicas of German Iron Cross to Be Sold at Delmar Garden Benefit.

Representatives of more than 100 German, Austro-Hungarian, church and women's societies in St. Louis, working with the Citizens' Relief Committee, will participate in the charity festival to be held in Delmar Garden Saturday and Sunday for the benefit of German and Austrian hospitals in Europe and the Widows and Orphans Relief Fund. These organizations hope ultimately to raise $1,000,000 or more by their activities in St. Louis.

A feature of the festival will be the auctioning off of several hundred replicas of the Iron Cross, the German hero medal. These have been donated by local jewelers, one having made a replica in gold, studded with diamonds. Others have donated crosses of silver and other material.

Donations to be sold and auctioned off are being received daily, and when the festival opens it is expected that everything from a needle to a cooking range may be had at the booths. The latter will be in charge of the women of the various societies.

The German Stock Company will give a performance in the theater, and callioth exercises will be held on the lawn. Five bands and a number of singing societies will enliven the event.

Following is the Executive Committee, having active charge of the preparations: Emil Frel, chairman; Rev. E. Richter, vice-chairman; George Vosges, secretary; R. Schimmo, treasurer; P. Sommer, finance secretary; Q. Kallmeyer, George Withum, M. Deck, Rev. H. Walk, Director Hans Loebel, H. Kersting, E. Kist, William Petersen, William Seeger, L. Hiler, Dr. G. Moser, W. R. Casper, G. Schneider, A. V. Hoffmann, P. Polowitch, J. Potolsky, Dr. Charles Weinsberg, P. N. Klemm, Father Specker, George Schwartz, Mrs. M. Schmitz, Edward Buechel, P. W. Keck, Carl Schreiner and W. Schmitz.

That lot has increased in value since I purchased it, but my business needs the money and I'm willing to let it go for what I paid. This is the story behind some of the real estate offered in Post-Dispatch Wants—especially Sunday.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 30.—The death of Jerry Beaver, 80 years old, early in the week, removed another of this city's early pioneers. Beaver came here 40 years ago from Pennsylvania as a carpenter. A daughter in Pennsylvania and five grandchildren survive him.

At the latter place he met Forder. Chandeysson was graduated, became an interne in the city hospital and later practiced medicine a while.

Then a genius for electrical engineering manifested itself, and after preliminary work with various companies, he and Forder and others organized the Pan-Electric Co. in 1903. He continued his experiments and as a result, the Chandeysson motor and generator became known.

Likewise he took out his last naturalization papers in 1906. Wishing to return to France and reclaim certain property, he sought the advice of friends.

Forder said last spring a friend of Chandeysson's returned from France, bearing a small booklet, which seemed to satisfy Chandeysson that he could square himself with the French Government by serving either 18 or 23 days in the army and then would be allowed to claim his property.

So on June 18 he bade farewell to America, and set sail for la belle France. He would be over there only a little while, would reclaim his property, enjoy a few days in the mother country—and then come home.

He reached France. Everything was serene. "War's wild alarms" had not yet been sounded. He pursued his way leisurely about the country. From Monte Carlo he sent Forder a post card on July 29, saying the people about him seemed wild to fight. So far as Forder knew, he had not served the 18 or 23 days, which the booklet seemed to state was all that was required of a man to his case.

Then he left Monte Carlo and started across the French border. The next communication Forder received from him was a beseeching cablegram in which he said that he had been forced into the army, and "please have Mayor Kiel wire that he had been naturalized."

Forder got into communication with all parties in authority, including Senator Stone and the State Department. But as Chandeysson had left France, years before, without serving his time as a soldier, the United States Government was powerless to intervene.

And now Pierre Ischmael Chandeysson, quondam physician and electrical genius, is responding to reveille and taps sounded in a French fort on the Italian border—he's a soldier of the tri-color, though a citizen of the "grand old U. S. A."

He's already served more than 23 days in the army—and may serve many more.

MA FOI! PIERRE, A MAN OF PEACE, SOLDIER IN FRANCE

Misguided by a Booklet He Goes on Visit Home and Gets Put Into Ranks.

M. Pierre Ischmael Chandeysson of 1337 Ruitger street, president of the Pan-Electric Co., 735 South Fourth street, is responding to reveille and taps sounded in a French fort at Briancon, France, near the Italian border.

In other words, Chandeysson is a soldier of the tri-color, much against his will—although a full-fledged, naturalized citizen of the U. S. A.

Thereupon hangs a sad tale. Chandeysson, a native of St. Marcel d'Ardeche, a romantic village in Southern France. When 18 years old his parents died, and he took passage for Montreal, avoiding army service, according to W. C. Forder, treasurer of his company, and a friend of many years standing.

From Montreal, Chandeysson went to the great Canadian Northwest and farmed awhile. A bad season disgusted him and he began studying medicine in Canada. From there he came to St. Louis and studied in the old Missouri University of Medicine, just before it consolidated with Washington University. That was 20 years ago.

At the latter place he met Forder. Chandeysson was graduated, became an interne in the city hospital and later practiced medicine a while.

Then a genius for electrical engineering manifested itself, and after preliminary work with various companies, he and Forder and others organized the Pan-Electric Co. in 1903. He continued his experiments and as a result, the Chandeysson motor and generator became known.

Likewise he took out his last naturalization papers in 1906. Wishing to return to France and reclaim certain property, he sought the advice of friends.

BRIDGE COMMITTEE TO SEEK SOUTHERN TRACTION REPEAL

Appeal to Municipal Assembly Will Be Considered at Meeting on Oct. 12.

A movement to bring about the repeal of the Southern Traction franchise is being planned by the Citizens' Free Bridge Committee. The committee has been considering the matter several weeks, and probably will offer a resolution at a city hall meeting Oct. 12, calling upon the Municipal Assembly to repeal the ordinance.

The Southern Traction franchise, which grants the Southern Traction Co. of Illinois a franchise to operate street cars on a loop extending from the west approach of the free bridge through the business district of the city, has been one of the big obstacles in the way of completing the bridge.

The Citizens Committee, after investigating the question, has come to the conclusion that the franchise ought to be repealed, especially since the Southern Traction Co. is now in the hands of receivers. A repeal bill has been passed by the House of Delegates, and is pending in the Council.

Program to Be Outlined. The Citizens' Committee has arranged a meeting in the rotunda of the city hall the night of Oct. 12. Representatives from each of the 114 business organizations comprising the Citizens' Bridge Committee will attend. A complete campaign program will be outlined.

It is probable also that a plan for the employment of St. Louis labor on the unfinished work of the bridge will be presented to the meeting.

Citizens who circulated initiative petitions in the free bridge campaign last spring have been asked to work for the $2,750,000 bond issue on election day, Nov. 6. The Citizens' Bridge Committee has sent letters to the petition circulators asking them how many hours they can give to campaign work on election day. It is expected that the majority will show enough interest to work at least part of the day.

Their work will be to keep track of the voters in each precinct and see that those favorable to the bond issue go to the polls.

10 Workers for Each Precinct. About 500 persons volunteered to circulate the initiative petitions. The Citizens' Committee wishes to have at least twice that number of workers at the polls. By having 10 or more workers in each precinct the committee believes that a two-thirds majority for the bonds will be obtained.

There will be two elections in November. The first election, on Tuesday, Nov. 3, will be for the selection of a United States Senator, Congressmen, State and city officers. The free bridge bond issue election will be the following Friday. A special election was called, as many constitutional amendments are to be voted on at the general election, and it was thought that the bond issue would be overlooked by some voters.

Mount Lassen Spends Five. MINERAL, Cal., Sept. 30.—Lassen Peak, whose activities have been growing more pronounced daily, started spouting fire and superheated rock last night. Previous reports of flame have not been well substantiated.

NO ROWDYISM V. P. NIGHT Chief Young Issues Orders for Conduct of Crowds.

No rowdiness will be tolerated on the night of the Veiled Prophet's parade, according to a general order issued by Police Chief Young this morning. Stipulations, confetti and similar means of popular amusement will be taboo.

Captains are personally charged with responsibility for enforcing the order in the territories to which they will be assigned the streets along the line of march must be kept clear from curb to curb.

Can't Find Place He Left Money. Henry Karle of Bloomington, Ill., on arriving in St. Louis last night, as a precaution against theft, placed his money, $25, with one saloon keeper, containing $55 worth of tools, with another, and an extra suit of clothes with a third. This morning he was unable to locate the saloons. He appealed to the police.

War May Close K. U. Laboratories. LAWRENCE, Kan., Sept. 30.—If the European war continues much longer the chemical laboratories at the University of Kansas will have to be closed. The supply of chemicals on hand is sufficient to run the school for some time, but it is now impossible to get the articles from Europe. A 50 per cent increase in the cost of chemicals has been caused.

344 OF 76,000 SCHOOL CHILDREN HERE DEFECTIVES

Prof. J. E. Wallin, Noted Psychologist, Recently Employed, Has Remedial Plans.

MANUAL WORK A CURE

Would Have Pupils Trained Physically Before Mental Education Is Tried.

Out of an enrollment of more than 76,000 pupils in the St. Louis public schools, 344 pupils up to this time have been found to be defective to such an extent that they need training in special schools provided for that purpose. There are 12 of these special schools where mentally arrested and backward children are taught. This year they are under the direction of Prof. J. E. Wallin, a noted psychologist, who was brought here from Pennsylvania for that special purpose.

At a meeting of a Board of Education committee yesterday afternoon Dr. Wallin recommended several radical changes in the course of instruction for these backward pupils. Heretofore efforts have been made to educate them in the same branches taught in the regular schools.

Manual Work Remedy.
Dr. Wallin believes this system is ineffective and that manual training should be the first step in developing the mentality of pupils in the special schools.

"The mental capacity of some of these children is so limited there is little chance of developing them through the usual academic training," said Dr. Wallin to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "The best we can hope to do is to train their hands and senses so that, physically, at least, they will be able to take care of themselves and possibly to earn a living."

Some children in the special schools at the age of 10 years have a mental capacity no greater than that of a normal child 3 years old. For the development of such children Dr. Wallin recommends special apparatus be installed and that gymnasium work be taken up at the special schools. To improve the defective children's powers of co-ordination he would have ladder laid on the floor and require the children first to walk the length of a ladder, stepping over each rung, and when they have accomplished this he would have them step from rung to rung. He also would have them taught to walk along the edge of a narrow plank. Sewing and mat weaving would also be a part of the suggested course. No attempt would be made to teach the academic branches until the children had become physically efficient.

Great Results.

STARVING MAN HELD AS ASSAILANT OF CHILD

He Had Not Left His Room Since the Alleged Attack Five Days Ago.

John Williams, also known as "Buck" Taylor, 45 years old, was found in a starving condition yesterday at his home, 621 Biddle street. He told the police he had not eaten anything for five days.

Later Williams was identified at the city hospital by Mrs. Charles Wilber of 713A South Boyle avenue and Mrs. Hazel Wolff of 713 South Boyle avenue as the man they saw running from the basement of the home of Mrs. Sadie Rubenstein, 711 South Boyle, last Thursday, after Mrs. Rubenstein's 5-year-old daughter, Mildred, had been attacked. Williams denied being guilty of the attack, but admitted he had not left his room since last Thursday evening. He is held pending application for a warrant.

INQUIRY INTO DEATH

Autopsy Reveals Wife Died After an Operation.

The death of Mrs. Lottie Levering, 51 years old, of 1215 North Ninth street, at the city hospital yesterday, is to be investigated by the coroner. An autopsy revealed she died from gangrene superinduced by an operation.

The police last Saturday found Mrs. Levering in a semiconscious state. Her husband, William Levering, did not want her taken to the hospital, but she was removed over his protest.

CARS HALTED AT TIME McCULLOCH FUNERAL BEGINS

They Carry Black Pennants Out of Respect to Dead Chief of United Railways.

TWO SERVICES ARE HELD

Masons Conduct the First and United Confederate Veterans the Other.

Every street car in St. Louis today carried a pennant of black crepe on its trolley pole out of respect to Capt. Robert McCulloch, president of the United Railways, who died Monday morning and whose funeral was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the McCulloch residence, 449 Westminster place.

The services at the residence were in charge of the Masonic order, and the prayer was offered by the Rev. John P. Cannon, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church. At the grave at Bellefontaine Cemetery, the United Confederate Veterans had charge, and prayer was offered by the Rev. C. C. Woods.

The body lay in state in the east parlor. It was clad in a gray suit, closely approaching in shade the gray which Capt. McCulloch wore as a Confederate soldier. In the right hand was a small Confederate flag. The lower end of the casket was covered with a floral blanket in the design of two Confederate flags crossed. At the foot was another floral design representing the stars and bars.

In a corner of the room, near the head of the casket, was a large Confederate flag, furled and draped. A striking floral piece was a representation of a street car. It was a tribute from United Railways employees. The company's memorial was a large circle of immortelles, with the letters U. R. in the center.

All street car traffic was stopped for five minutes after 2 o'clock.

The directors of the Coliseum yesterday ordered that the building be closed today and that flags on the building be at half mast for one week. Capt. McCulloch was president of the Coliseum company.

The City Council and House of Delegates yesterday adopted resolutions of respect for Capt. McCulloch, and the Council resolution provided that the members should attend the funeral in a body. The Society of Colonial Wars selected a special committee to represent it at the funeral, and Henry Mott, president of the Old Company A Association, directed that a special committee represent the association.

McCulloch was a member of the board of directors of the Scottish Rite Cathedral Association. The officers of the board have adopted resolutions on his death and will attend the funeral. They are A. C. Stewart, C. P. Walbridge, Ben Altheimer, Albert H. White and Nicholas M. Bell.

Old Army Friend Was Awaiting Visit From McCulloch.

J. W. Brookings of Huntville, Mo., who fought throughout the Civil War in the same Confederate division as the late Capt. McCulloch, but who did not meet the latter until the Gettysburg reunion was held last year, is at the Mayfield Sanitarium recovering from a dangerous operation performed two weeks ago. He was in bed until Sunday, and on that day Capt. McCulloch had intended paying him a visit.

Brookings, who bears a striking resemblance to Capt. McCulloch, was a sergeant in the light artillery which supported Pickett's infantry division, in which Capt. McCulloch fought. He enlisted from Richmond, Va. He was the only member of his detachment present at Gettysburg last year, and Capt. McCulloch was one of the few members of his company there.

Brookings is 72 years old, one year younger than Capt. McCulloch. He is engaged in the musical instrument business in Huntville.

NEW CHARTER SAVES CITY $15,000 ON STREET WORK

Code Permits Public Service Board to Shift Assessments on Florissant Avenue.

The first exercise of the broadened assessment powers conferred by the new charter on the Board of Public Service and the legislative branch, may occur in a bill introduced yesterday in the Council for the improvement of Florissant avenue, by which Bellefontaine Cemetery may save $20,000 and the city itself about $15,000 that would have been assessed against O'Fallon Park under the old charter.

The amounts saved by the city and the cemetery will be shifted to the owners of property abutting on the west side of Florissant avenue, between Bernays and Carrie avenue. The total cost of the improvement is estimated at $35,000.

The old charter fixed rigidly the boundaries of a benefit district, while the new charter allows the Board of Public Service to exercise discrimination.

Under a bill pending in the House of Delegates before the new charter became effective, the cemetery management would have to pay a proportionate cost on its holding half way to the next public thoroughfare, which is Broadway, almost half a mile distant O'Fallon Park, owned by the city, would have been assessed on the same basis.

CONDUCTOR HITS ROBBER

Punches Negro in Face When Revolver Is Levelled at Him.

When a Sarah street car, in charge of Conductor William J. Bell of 3622 Easton avenue, rounded the curve at Sarah street and Labadie avenue, south bound, at 3:30 o'clock last night a negro jerked the trolley from the overhead wire.

Bell left his cage to adjust the pole and a second negro with a revolver commanded him to throw up his hands. Bell knocked the weapon aside and punched the negro in the face knocking off his cap. The negro joined his companion on the sidewalk and both fled through a lot.

MOTHER WHO SHOT SELF AND DAUGHTER IS DEAD

Mrs. Manda Case Succumbs at City Hospital, Unable to Make a Statement.

Mrs. Manda Case, 51 years old, of 1808 A Rutger street, who shot herself and daughter, Edna, early yesterday in the bedroom of their home while the latter slept, died at 3 o'clock this morning at the city hospital. Miss Case's condition is still very serious.

Although the police tried to get a statement from Mrs. Case, the injured woman could give none, as she was in a semi-conscious condition yesterday.

Andrew B. Case, a postoffice clerk, told the police his wife had suffered for years from stomach trouble and often had threatened to kill herself, taking her daughter with her.

WIFE HAS CLAIM OF $2000 AGAINST HUSBAND, BANKRUPT

Mrs. Katherine C. Pasquier Tells Referee Coles She Loaned Him Wedding Gift.

Mrs. Katherine C. Pasquier, who filed a $2000 claim, in bankruptcy proceedings against her husband, Adolph G. Pasquier, a dealer in woollens, testified before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles this morning that during nine years he repaid her but $80.

The $2000 was money which Mrs. Pasquier said she loaned her husband shortly after their marriage. It was a wedding present from her father. Mrs. Pasquier testified she kept a diary in which she recorded every payment he made her. Some of the amounts were written in French, Mrs. Pasquier testified, so that if she lost the diary she hoped the finder would not be able to read the notations.

Pasquier, whose scheduled liabilities are $18,007.72 and whose assets $3366.90, has a counter claim against his wife for $2384.75.

P. J. Cunningham, Mrs. Pasquier's father, a wealthy woolen merchant, discovered newspaper reporters in the room making notes, and asked Referee Coles if he did not have his permission to "throw these men out of the room."

Referee Coles told Cunningham the hearing was public.

Cunningham protested again and was asked by the referee to leave the room. He then told Coles he would sit down and be quiet, but Coles was firm and Cunningham departed. Later Mrs. Pasquier asked Coles if everything she said would be printed. The referee told her the hearing was public, as all bankruptcy cases are.

Mrs. Pasquier said after her marriage she borrowed $150 from her husband from the $2000 she had loaned him. Their financial condition became so bad, she declared, it was necessary for her to give up her engagement ring to liquidate a hotel bill.

Whenever she asked her husband for money to apply on the $2000 debt, Mrs. Pasquier said, he would become furious and would not speak to her.

Mrs. Pasquier said she was determined to get the money back she loaned her husband if it took a lifetime. One Christmas Eve Mrs. Pasquier testified she asked her husband for $50 and at first he refused to give her anything. Later he gave her $5, but refused to speak to her Christmas day and for several weeks afterward.

Money Causes Quarrels.

Every time Mrs. Pasquier asked her husband for money to apply on the debt, she stated, an unpleasant quarrel followed. When she moved to the Cambridge Court Apartments at 917 McPherson avenue, Mrs. Pasquier said she asked her husband to buy a bedroom set. He told her to order the goods and she bought $115 worth.

The bill was not paid for several

Experts Agree the Boiling of Drinking Water Is Unnecessary

There is no need of boiling St. Louis water as a precaution against harmful germs.

Dr. Walter S. Thomas, independent expert retained by the Board of Public Service to make tests, reports that there are no colon bacilli in the water.

Health Commissioner Starkloff announced that there is no longer need of boiling water and notified the Board of Education that the water can be turned on at the schools.

City bacteriologist Baldwin says he also is satisfied that there are no bacilli in the water, his tests not having disclosed any for the past 10 days.

months, Mrs. Pasquier said. When it was she gave her husband credit for the amount in her dairy.

About six weeks ago, Mrs. Pasquier testified, while at dinner in a West End cafe with her husband, he informed her that she owed his business $300.

She said she had no idea when she might have incurred the debt, and still doesn't believe that she owes her husband anything.

She afterwards went into the house building business and her husband and father were her financial agents. Mrs. Pasquier built houses on contract and on speculation and made profits on the sale of each, she testified.

Boased House Building.

She did not state how many houses she built. She said she superintended the construction of the houses, working from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. until the job was done.

Reading from her diary, Mrs. Pasquier said her husband made the following payments on the $2000 debt: Sept. 24, 1904, $5; May 1, 1905, $5; Dec. 2, 1906, $4; July 1, 1906, $15; Feb. 2, 1907, $5; July 15, 1907, $10; July 1, 1908, $7; Dec. 24, 1908, $5; March 11, 1909, $10; May 1, 1910, $10, and Dec. 24, 1910, $5.

Mrs. Pasquier gave her husband credit for $115, the cost of the bedroom set in June, 1913. She testified her husband has been in the insurance and grab-buys business.

Mrs. Pasquier was becomingly gowned in a black broadcloth suit, the neck and wrists trimmed in fur. She wore a black turban hat trimmed with a bunch of black feathers. Gray silk stockings and gumshoe pumps completed her attire.

Water Commissioner Wall said today he regarded the report of Dr. Thomas as a vindication of himself and his department. The Health Department, he said, had blundered in reporting contamination on insufficient evidence. Since Aug. 24, when the Health Department sounded its first alarm, he has insisted that nothing was wrong with the water. The report, he said, proved that he was right. The people had been exposed to inconvenience and expense for no cause, he said.

The explanation, he said, was that the Health Department tests were merely presumptive and not conclusive. An organism was found which was presumed to be dangerous and therefore the tests stopped. Dr. Thomas made complete tests, he said, and had found that the organisms were harmless.

Wall said that the four chemists at the Water Department laboratory had found colon bacilli in only one sample out of 335 in the last 30 days. Dr. Thomas found none in his 37 tests.

Health Commissioner Starkloff said Dr. F. A. Baldwin, the city bacteriologist, reported bacilli in the water. He had confidence in Dr. Baldwin, accepted his report and warned the public, as his duty bound him to do.

Dr. Baldwin said he believed the water was now pure but reiterated that it was not pure when he made the tests on which he reported the presence of the bacilli. The cleaning of one basin of the Compton Hill reservoir and the flushing of the mains, explained their disappearance, he said.

Since Aug. 24, when the Health Department sounded its first alarm, he has insisted that nothing was wrong with the water. The report, he said, proved that he was right. The people had been exposed to inconvenience and expense for no cause, he said.

The explanation, he said, was that the Health Department tests were merely presumptive and not conclusive. An organism was found which was presumed to be dangerous and therefore the tests stopped. Dr. Thomas made complete tests, he said, and had found that the organisms were harmless.

Wall said that the four chemists at the Water Department laboratory had found colon bacilli in only one sample out of 335 in the last 30 days. Dr. Thomas found none in his 37 tests.

Health Commissioner Starkloff said Dr. F. A. Baldwin, the city bacteriologist, reported bacilli in the water. He had confidence in Dr. Baldwin, accepted his report and warned the public, as his duty bound him to do.

Dr. Baldwin said he believed the water was now pure but reiterated that it was not pure when he made the tests on which he reported the presence of the bacilli. The cleaning of one basin of the Compton Hill reservoir and the flushing of the mains, explained their disappearance, he said.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

How to Obtain Peace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
How to obtain peace is the one great question we have to solve today. Our President has set aside a day to that all churches and all people will pray for peace. This proclamation, beautiful alike in its spirit and in its form, will appeal to all Americans whether Roman Catholic, Protestants or Jews. Even those who doubt the value of prayer may well join in this common expression of deep desire for the speedy recovery of Europe from this war.

Think of the power that is sweeping over the country on this day. Note the peacefulness of every person. It will be a day to all mankind to have a day in which everyone will be thinking of peace. We can say with Colton on this day, "Peace is the evening star of the soul, as virtue is its sun and the two never far apart."

But in this period we find war almost with all mankind. It is war, ambition, envy or pride that is gobbling up our peace. I am certain if these enemies were banished we would enjoy perpetual peace. But it must first be the desire of each individual, then peace will come to the nations. War is man's corruption and his disgrace while peace is his natural, happy state. Let us then accept the fruits of the spirit which are "Love, joy, peace, long suffering, faith, goodness, meekness and temperance. Against these there are no laws." Through prayer, then, our peace must come.

On Oct. 4, then, let every man and woman pray that peace may be multiplied unto all the peoples and languages that dwell in all the earth. Peace be multiplied unto you!

Beef Trust Prices.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I think it is high time that our Government was getting after this Beef Trust and bring a halt on high prices. Ten days ago I bought pork loins for 17 1/2 cents. Today they charge 1 1/2 cents and live hogs are 80 cents per hundred lower than they were 10 days ago.

A BUTCHER.

East St. Louis News.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

On Sept. 23 there appeared in the Republic a letter purporting to come from an East St. Louisan who deprecated the East St. Louis scene in the Belleville Pageant. His objections to that scene were well taken and his view is concurred in by thousands of East St. Louisans. But his irrelevant comments about the St. Louis newspapers gave evidence of his utter lack of investigation and observation. Every St. Louis newspaper is at this time printing better news about East St. Louis than ever before. A higher class of East St. Louis news is to be found now in all of the papers and so far as the average reader is concerned there is very little if any difference in the treatment of such news by the St. Louis papers.

Today all of the St. Louis Sunday papers contain a complete review of East St. Louis real estate news. A year ago not a line of East St. Louis real estate news could be found in any of them. Today all of the St. Louis papers devote space at various times, to East St. Louis society news while a year ago the publication of such news was an event. Today East St. Louis industry is news, that is, accounts of the progress of East St. Louis factories, appear frequently in St. Louis papers. Not only one of them, but in all of them. All of the St. Louis papers recognize the industrial and commercial importance and proportions of East St. Louis. All of the St. Louis papers realize that East St. Louis is composed of a bright, energetic, progressive citizenship, and their editors are willing to give credit where credit is due.

Cure for Smokers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is with interest that I read the letter from "Mr. in Saturday's paper. While many people, no doubt, object to smoking on the cars, there are also many who do not like the "no-smoking" rule. I agree that rules should be enforced; but why not give everybody a fair deal? On lines where the closed-in type cars are used, why not allow every fifth or sixth car to be a smoker, so designated by a sign on the outside? That would give everybody a chance to enjoy their ride to and from work as much as possible and those who object to smoking would have no complaints to make. Neither would the smokers; also rules could be enforced much easier. "A SMOKER."

TIMES TO DELIVER.

From the Chicago Post.
We have sampled, sampled and advance agents South America for years and years. What we want to do now is get some goods down there. Or it would almost pay to send down an empty vessel to bring some of their goods up here. For we must establish a basis of exchange. But what we do let us get the idea that the era of booming is ending.

REED AND THE ANTI-TRUST BILL.

Senator Reed was ready today to continue his efforts to have the conference agreement (on the Clayton anti-trust bill) recommitted, on the ground that it has been materially weakened through the elimination of specific penalties and modification of many of its features. Administration leaders in the Senate are confident that the effort will fail. They are determined to press the measure to a final conclusion.—Associated Press Report.

Close scrutiny of the conference report, side by side with the bill as the House passed it, and as the Senate amended it, proves that the Senate weakened the House bill and the joint conference has weakened the Senate bill, all as Senator Reed asserts. Thus:

1. The conference report restores the House section forbidding discrimination of price between different purchasers of commodities, which was stricken out by the Senate, but adds provision which seems certain in practice to nullify the attempted prohibition.

2. The conference report fails to restore that section of the House bill, stricken out by the Senate, forbidding producers of hydro-electric power, etc., to refuse to sell their product to any responsible applicant for it.

3. The conference report weakens the section forbidding "tying contracts," like those with which the United Shoe Machinery Co. has maintained an alleged monopoly control of the shoe business, by adding to the prohibition a clause which requires the Government, suing, to prove that the effect of such contract may be to create a monopoly. In the House and Senate bills the existence of such contract was assumed to prove intent to monopolize.

4. The House bill as amended by the Senate enabled a trust victim, suing for three-fold reparation, as provided by the Sherman Act of 1890, to use as prima facie evidence testimony taken by the Government in any action civil or criminal, convicting a defendant of violating the anti-trust laws, and made this rule apply to any "final judgment or decree heretofore or hereafter rendered."

The conference report virtually destroys this section by providing that it "shall not apply to consent judgments or decrees entered before any testimony has been taken," or to "consent judgments or decrees in criminal proceedings or suits in equity now pending in which the taking of testimony has been commenced but has not been concluded, provided such judgments or decrees are rendered before any further testimony has been taken." The words "heretofore or hereafter" are stricken out. Briefly, this means that a bar is set against recovery or reparation by trust victims for past monopoly oppression, and that any trust now in court or hereafter haled into court can confess judgment without trial, pay a "fine not exceeding $5000" (or as to its "personally guilty" officers, risk a prison term not exceeding one year—which is not mandatory) and escape making any reparation to its victims.

5. The conference report weakens the House bill's section limiting interlocking bank directorates by doubling the size of banks which may have interlocking directors, and by eliminating the specific penalty of a fine of $100 daily, or imprisonment, which the House bill provided for violation of this section.

6. The Senate bill penalized "inside graft" by the crime of common carriers with a fine for each of not more than $25,000 and not less than two years' imprisonment. The conference report weakens this section by proposing to fine the corporation not more than $25,000 and each guilty official not more than $5000, and by making the prison punishment not more than one year, and not mandatory, but at the option of the court.

7. The conference report strikes out the section requiring the court to appoint receivers for corporations convicted of maintaining monopolies and to dispose of their constituent companies in such a way as to restore competition.

8. The conference report strikes out the section declaring the power of the several states to enforce their anti-trust laws against corporations chartered in other states. The one particular in which the conference report strengthens the bill is where it confines enforcement of its provisions controlling national banks to the Federal Reserve Board.

All that the Sherman law lacked to cover the situation was a provision making guilt personal in officers of law-breaking corporations, and making their punishment, by prison terms which they could not pass along to consumers of their products, mandatory.

This pending bill does not deliver.

SAVE THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

Unless music lovers will promptly subscribe $15,000 to the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra that splendid institution must go out of existence.

Thirty-five years of effort will have spelled a great community failure and an artistic tragedy. And the death of the superb organization at this time would be an advertisement of a want of resources and a want of civic spirit that St. Louis could ill afford.

The Symphony Orchestra appeals for its life to the general public—the people who sit in the audiences—and upon their contributions its fate depends. General contributions of comparatively small sums are relied upon to make up the figure. The symphony plays to 100,000 people a year. If all these beneficiaries would, or could, contribute a few cents from each one would save the day. A few dollars from each of those who can afford to give will save the day.

A few individuals of means have already done and are doing their part handsomely towards the support of an institution which is for the pleasure and profit of the many.

WILL THE MANY NOW COME TO THE RESCUE?

Contributions and subscriptions should be sent at once to the office of the Symphony Society, Room 1223 Central National Bank Building.

A FOREST PARK SURPRISE.

Taking a short cut from the boathouse to the tennis courts, over a well-trodden path, visitors to Forest Park suddenly find themselves, within about 100 yards of the tennis courts, at the edge of a ravine—the old bed of a branch of the Des Peres. This ravine is about 30 feet deep, and a black, disgusting fluid, from 15 to 20 feet wide, fills the bottom. Stepping stones, more or less stable, enable one to cross, after a rather dangerous climb down the bank. Hundreds of visitors, including many children, took this course on Sunday, rather than waste time hunting for a bridge.

After leaving the splendid terraced gardens surrounding the shelter-house near Art Hill and the trim lawns around the band stand, this savage, ill-smelling ditch startles the visitor by its utter contrast and abnormality. It tends to spoil the good effect of the park as a St. Louis beauty spot in the minds of the visitors.

Before laying out any more elaborate parkways, terraces and flower beds, it would be well to cover or fill up this open drain, which is not only an eyesore, but a menace to health, lying as it does close to an important part of the people's playgrounds.

A TERMINAL ASSOCIATION REVOLT.

The roads represented in the St. Louis Terminal Association are now quarreling among themselves over the bridge arbitrary.

The chief issue is as to the lines which shall act as collecting agents in passing the unjust charge on to the consumer. The fact, however, that the railroads themselves have fallen out over the ancient exaction adds further illumination for a subject on which the public mind has sometimes been confused and promises that St. Louis, long a victim of the charge, may get its dues through other means than a court order.

Particular roads represented in the association have, it seems, joined to impose on other roads represented there the same form of rank discrimination which all the roads united to impose on this city. The charge complained of is that on through traffic, not that on traffic originating in the 100-mile radius and billed to St. Louis, Association roads west of the river having freight destined for the East, are forced to turn it over to the Eastern association roads in East St. Louis and to pay $5 a car as bridge charges.

But, when the Eastern roads have freight destined for the West, do they turn it over to the Western roads on this side of the river and pay the $5 a car themselves? They do not. This freight is also turned over in East St. Louis, with the Western roads held responsible for the bridge charge. The Western lines have to liquidate the charges both coming and going.

The fact that the Eastern roads have a majority on the board of the Terminal Association explains why this monstrous arrangement was made possible. Five Western roads now decline longer to make submission to the majority and have issued a defiant demand which, while primarily for the emancipation of through freight, strikingly resembles the principle which the Post-Dispatch has long insisted must be applied to freight destined for St. Louis. They urge:

"That the Terminal Railroad Association, jointly owned by 15 railroads, be operated as a common terminal and that all the proprietary lines contribute equally to its support."

This is the only equitable system. If the association is supported in part by specific charges levied on traffic destined for St. Louis, this city is placed at a disadvantage as compared with other cities. If it is supported in part by specific charges levied on through traffic, then freight routes via the St. Louis gateway are placed at a disadvantage as compared with routes via other gateways. The system demanded is the one ordered by the Supreme Court decision.

If the five roads had started their encouraging revolt earlier and had refused to join in the dilatory appeal from the court decision of May, 1912, the very system they now demand might long ago have been put into effect.

NOW FOR CONSTRUCTIVE WORK.

The pork barrel is disposed of, we hope permanently, by the adoption of the bill appropriating $20,000,000 for river and harbor improvements.

Now let us begin constructive work on a sound basis, with waste and graft eliminated. The Mississippi River should, as the Post-Dispatch has long advocated, be separated from general improvements and treated as a great vital public work, to be planned as a whole and provided with sufficient funds to complete it. It should be handled as the Panama Canal was handled.

United effort on the part of the Mississippi Valley would assure the abandonment of the present wasteful and inefficient methods and the adoption and execution of an adequate plan of improvement.

ROGER SULLIVAN'S LIGHT.

In a recent speech Roger Sullivan made the following remark:

"The day of hypocrisy is passing. We are coming to a new understanding of the word 'honesty.' By it we do not now mean mere dollar honesty; we mean mental honesty as well. We are upon a time when the people will demand mental honesty of all their public officials; when men in big business and in little business will find they cannot succeed through misrepresentation, deceit or chicanery. We are at a point where organized society must understand that life must be a fair, free and open race, without special privileges for anyone, and without exemptions from the penalties of wrong doing."

This brief disquisition on "mental honesty" and the evolution of morals in business and politics shines like a gem from the Wilson collection.

Mr. Sullivan sees the light. That is something gained. Now if he will apply his rule of mental honesty in the light of the new political ethics to practical political questions, Mr. Sullivan may, in the event of his election to the United States Senate, become a useful public servant.

As a man who has come up from the bottom of the ladder Mr. Sullivan knows the conditions of the people and their life problems. As a successful business man he knows business methods. As a powerful boss of long experience he knows politics and the connections of business and politics.

This is an excellent equipment with which to go into public service with a determination to apply the rule of mental honesty to every problem that presents itself. What else is there in public life for any man?

WATSONSON'S CAPITAL IN DANGER.

News that nine more Kentucky counties have been captured by the prohibitionists forebadowed Col. Henry Watsonson's prompt withdrawal from the campaign for the conquest of Mexico.

What will it profit him to gain everything between the Rio Grande and the Panama Canal, if he loses his own country?

The enemy already has his capital almost surrounded and are pressing steadily forward. One needs no expert military knowledge to predict with confidence that the redoubtable Colonel will at once abandon the offensive movement toward Mexico, concentrate his entire army within the Louisville intrenchments and prepare, like Col. Travis in the Alamo, to "fight till the last man falls."

Indeed, no one need be surprised if the Colonel issues a call for the Kentucky reservists in Missouri, Ohio, Texas, Virginia, Tennessee and other states to return to the colors.

THE READER'S WAR GUIDE.

The war progresses so slowly that there is not much guiding to be done; but we shall do what we can. On yesterday the allies finally got Gen. von Kluck started for the third page, and he was getting there about as fast as he could in the last edition. It is going to seem strange to have Germans so far back in the paper. They have usually held the front page and ranged over on the second; and we have usually thought of them in association with the first two pages, just as we always think of the Austrians in association with good hiding back in the war ads. At any rate, the allies seemed to have turned the tide of battle on the first page after more than two weeks of fighting, and it would not surprise us to see all the Germans start for some place back in the paper within the next few days. If so, it is going to be interesting to see what the Russians will do. The paper is full of Russians almost anywhere back of the second page, and they are full of fight. Whether they will continue full of fight after the Germans encounter them we very much doubt. We suspect that they will rather be full of an intense desire to see what

Sadders Says a Change in Right Field Is Needed

(By Lewis B. Ely.)

Poverty Sadders remarks: "All I've got to say today is that if I was the manager of the Germans I'd rank Von Kluck out of right field and put in a pinch hitter."

(The war umpire's shifting of his signal today is unofficial and informal and means only that he got tired of wearing it on the allies' side continuously.)

PANAMA.

From Lds. I am the skeleton in every nation's closet. I hide myself in the dark recesses behind the silent uniforms everying in the dark. While the guests make merry and the housewives play them with vials at the friendly board, I bide my time.

But when the alarms sound and the guests go out to kill, then I start forth in the gray shadows of early morning. With my thin wand I touch the cornfields and watch them wither.

And as the sun shines on battlefields my day of triumph comes. No longer afraid to show my hollow face, I stalk through villages and city, laying my rattling hands on mother and wife and babe.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

HEALTHY HINTS.

REMEDIAL.—Only a physician, studying your case, could answer you satisfactorily. The pains may possibly be due to sinus trouble.

T. B.—Massage is seldom affected by round worms. No diagnostic symptoms can be given. Constipation, a treatable abdominal tumor and even intestinal obstruction may result from balls of worms. They occasionally migrate to the common bile duct, throat and nose, giving unpleasant symptoms. HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

SPANISH CREAM.—Soak half box gelatine 1 hour in quart milk, put over fire and stir until milk is thick. Beat three eggs yolk very light with small cup sugar, add to the scalding milk and strain through cheese cloth, flavor with vanilla, turn into mold with cold water. When cold the ice to form.

MRS. S. W.—For pickled onions use a tender small white. Wipe carefully, cover with a strong brine, setting in cold place. Add three heads large onion, cover with boiling water. Put in porcelain-lined preserving kettle and cook in brine five minutes. Drain, add and cover with clear cold water for 24 hours. Drain once more, pack in fruit jars and fill jars to overflowing with scalding spiced vinegar; seal immediately. Set away for several months.

C. G.—Bed bugs. Buy a pound of cyanide of potassium, such as is used for the extraction of gold from its ore. Break up into small pieces and put in a small square crock. Then cautiously pour half pound sulphuric acid into pint water. When windows and doors are carefully closed, pour the acid solution on once, closing door tightly. Do not open door for two days. The fumes are poisonous to persons as well as insects. No bedbug or flea will escape the treatment.

Daniel Webster's favorite pickle: Wash and chop 15 cucumbers, half peck green tomatoes and 15 medium-sized onions; slice two heads large white cabbage and pack all in large earthenware jar with salt between layers; stand 48 hours. Have ready a pickle made with three quarts brown sugar, half cup turmeric powder, the same of ground black pepper, some celery seed, 4 fine ribs, red tomatoes, three-quarters cup cold vinegar and seed and 3 quarts best older vinegar; when this has come to a scald drain vegetables from jar, add vinegar and quarter pound mustard seed and mix in well.

The Missing Shirt

A Detective Story Wherein the Mystery Is Unraveled Both Figuratively and Literally.

By A. E. Swoyer.

HERLOCK SHOMES, the great detective, sat, pipe in mouth, idly idling away a day. Times were dull in the sleuthing business, and our hero had not the price of his regular shot of hope in the mysterious murders nor the reward of a solution. The truth must be told—the peerless Shomes was on his uppers!

"Great days, these, Fatson!" he said, carefully emptying the ash from his pipe into a bit of paper and dexterously rolling it into a cigarette. "Great days! No work for me; no anals for you to chronicle (at so much per chronic) for posterity. It seems as if the pleasure of a great murder no longer appeals to the strong-arm man; we are becoming a race of mollycoddles!" A tear for a moment dimmed the eagle eye of Shomes, trickling gently down his classic nose and lost itself in the stubble of his two week's beard.

"Education has done it," replied his friend. "The real brain criminal has learned that it is easier and more genteel to start a bank than to break into one; while the monetary results are the same. But, cheer up, Shomes, nothing can keep a good man down but a tombstone or a cash register!"

"You are right, Fatson! And even now I feel that in exactly five minutes, by your clock, a client, the victim of a dark and awful crime, will come!"

A ponderous knocking at the door interrupted him. Rising, hastily, he set the clock ahead five minutes. "Thus is the power of deduction vindicated! Right to the minute! Fatson, open the door. It is our client!"

The Client Enters.

BEFORE the faithful Fatson could reach the door, it opened, and a tall man, with a huge and shaggy beard, entered and sank heavily into a chair; the latter, not built for heavy work, collapsed. The strange visitor, who had been waiting on the floor, was said Shomes. "I see that you have a slight accident! You how I know? These things are easy to the trained mind! Fatson, you remember the interesting little problem of the Emerald Frankfurter, in which this power enabled me to trace a client, the victim of a dark and awful crime, will come!"

The stranger, who, framed amid the wreckage of the broken chair, now rose, listening, open mouthed, now rose. "Mr. Shomes," said he, "you are the man! I need! Something mysterious and dreadful threatens me! I am a marked man! Last evening—the trembling tones of this strong man made even the callous Fatson shiver—last evening, as an evidence of this power, the very shirt was stolen from my back. You, alone, can save me!"

"This is, indeed, a mystery, a case after my own heart. I can see in it the hand of that master criminal, Desperate Desmond, who has thwarted me for years! Our lives are all in danger! But come, tell me the details."

"They are few enough. In the first place, my name is Dalrymple. I run a doughnut foundry, and am fairly well to do. Last evening I dressed carefully to go to the club; I remember my new shirt particularly, it was of the knitted kind I always wear, but new. I spent an hour at the club, and on returning found the shirt was gone! My outer shirt, vest and coat were intact."

"[Hm!] said Shomes. "You must have been robbed of this—undergarment then, rather in your home, at the club, or between the two places?"

"Marvelous!" ejaculated Fatson.

Desperate Desmond's Work.

SHOMES, with the remarkable ability he always showed when on a case, whipped out a pocket rule and measured the distance between Dalrymple's eyes. Swiftly he entered the results in a large ledger. "This, indeed, Desmond's work!" he muttered. "We must find him!"

The Most Misused Word in the English Tongue

"GET" is a good English word. But, like other words, it must be employed for its specific meaning. It has only three letters in it, yet it is the most misused word in the English tongue.

"Have you a dollar?"

"No."

"Get me one, please. And after you have gotten it, bring it to me."

This is all that get, got or gotten means.

One becomes, falls or grows sick. Then some relative or neighbor goes and gets the doctor. After you recover, you get the doctor's bill. In no instance do you get his bill, unless you go to his office, get it, and having gotten it, take it home to reflect over the several items of his charges.

Remember this: It is impossible to "get" anything that does not possess an absolute tangibility.

Hence one cannot get a promotion, but wins it, and one cannot get rid of a thing. Stop and think how foolish and meaningless it is to say "get rid" and "get rid." "I am going to rid myself of I have rid myself or having rid myself of such a person or annoyance," is proper.

One gets a wife, obtains a job, gets an uncle, but never "gets" into it; goes and gets a new suit of clothes, never gets the bill for it, if it is mailed to him, because, in truth, he receives it, and so on.

"Get his goat," of course, is slang and has its own specific purpose of expression, but it is good English, nevertheless. For, literally, and in the proper employment of the word, a goat is one of the things one may "get." That is, no over to where the goat is, the rope around its neck and lead Billy home.

Just this, and absolutely nothing else, is what the word "get" means.

Julia's Dream

Sandman Story of How She Falls Asleep, Sees Visions of Fairies, and Is Awakened by the Voice of Her Long-Lost Father.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

JULIA stood in the middle of the kitchen and looked about her; there were the dishes to be done, the beds to be made, the rooms to dust and the vegetables to be prepared for dinner and Mrs. Jones had told her to darn the socks in her work basket.

"Just can't do all of it," said Julia, with tears in her eyes. "I'll get a scolding anyway, so I guess I won't do any of the work; I'll go into the garden and look at the flowers."

Julia took off her long gingham apron and went into the garden. She dearly loved flowers, and while Mrs. Jones had a large garden Julia had never had a chance to look at the flowers all she wanted to.

Julia had lived with Farmer Jones and his wife a year; her mother was dead and her father, who was a sailor, had not been heard from in two years and as there was no orphan asylum in the town where she lived, a home was found for her with the Jones family.

She sang as she walked among the flowers, and after she had seen them all she sat down under a tree and then she thought of her work, and she wondered what Mrs. Jones would say. "I wish a fairy would come along," said Julia.

JUST then Julia felt a queer sensation. It was as though she was gliding through the air, and she found herself back in the kitchen, and a commotion as there was. The dishes were jumping up and down in the dishpan, making the water fly in all directions, then they jumped out and stood in front of the stove to dry and then ran to the closet and popped into their places on the shelf.

The broom came running from behind the door where it was kept, and brushed the floor. The dust pan and the brush jumped from their hook by the chimney and took up the dust and put it in the stove, and the kitchen looked as spick and span as though Julia had done it herself.

Then she felt herself gliding up the stairs to the bedrooms without her feet touching the stairs, and there were the mattresses shaking themselves just as Mrs. Jones had taught her to do, and when they were back on the bed the clothes spread over them looking as though they had been smoothed into place with the broomstick as Julia did every morning.

BACK to the kitchen Julia glided once more, and the vegetables were in a pan of water all ready for the kettle. "There are fairies, after all," said Julia. "I can go back to the garden and sit under the tree."

But just then she heard a voice say:

You and Your Servant—Who Is More to Blame?

THE study of household economics is engaging the attention of most of the civilized world, for there arises a constant cry on the part of housekeepers that servants are so hard to keep and so "good for nothing, generally."

Has the woman who makes this assertion ever seriously considered her own actions and habits in relation to those of her servant? Has she ever considered that her maid is more intelligent, more informed, more desirous of the good things of life than the maids of a past generation whose mistresses did not have half the luxuries that modern women regard a necessity, and whose servants had more comforts than are accorded the servants of today?

In large cities the servants are usually given a tiny, stuffy and often ill lighted and ill ventilated room to sleep in. That is enough to breed in the usual domestic servant a spirit of discontent as well as discomfort. She must seek outside for air and rest.

But the main trouble lies in the fact that many women have become so lazy in their habits and dispositions that they resent having the care of a home with the responsibilities and labors necessary to the proper ordering of a household. They resent having to keep regular hours—to a certain extent—in order that the servant may learn the lesson of regularity; they object to controlling their temper if things do not go smoothly at all times. Too many mistresses are hurried in their methods and slurs over the duties of housekeeping; they are fidgety and hasty in speech over trivial matters when a calm word rightly spoken would mean so much to the servant. They have no conscience and will neglect her work unless she is watched; and they have little or no consideration for the rights and feelings of their dependents.

This sort of mistress is very common and the irresponsible servant is, therefore, equally common. She is more ignorant, less self-controlled and possessed of less judgment than her mistress, else she would not be a servant. She, therefore, reflects the unreasonableness, the irritability, the careless habits, the selfish indulgence of her mistress. If she is not going to get the credit of doing her work faithfully and well, why trouble about it so? She slurs over her work and is ill-tempered when reproved about it. Why should a mistress who slurs over her duties expect a maid to be better than herself? The maid realizes that no sort of home comforts and home attractions are provided for her and so she demands days and evenings off quite regardless of whether her hours of recreation interfere with the home comforts and pleasures of employers.

It is almost an infallible rule that the good mistress will make a good servant and the bad mistress a bad one. Servants are imitators. The lower down in the scale of creation that a man and woman are, the more imitative they are of those who hold the relation of superiors to them. Servants are nearly all plastic and may be molded to the humor of a mistress almost as completely as the sculptor molds his clay.

Let a woman dispassionately consider her own shortcomings in relation to those of her servants, and her attitude towards those who serve her, and she will see many ways in which she can make of herself a wiser mistress and of her maids better servants.

The mistress who nags those who work for her deserves all that she gets in the way of bad service. There are women who pride themselves upon their housekeeping and who follow behind their maids in a manner that would exasperate an angel. It is a wise woman who gives as few orders as possible to her servants and lets them always understand that she expects perfect obedience; who lets her women and men feel that she looks upon them as human beings and takes a personal interest in their welfare; who looks after the health and comfort of her dependents as she would after that of her children; who does not expect of any one more than he can do; and who knows when it is wisdom to close her eyes to trivial mistakes and errors, which are then far less likely to be repeated.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

Scalp Dries—Chokes Out the Hair and Prevents Its Growth.

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to destroy it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

Why Japan Is Proud

NOR is Japan at all ashamed of being classed among Mongolians, a race that has as great a history as any nation of the West. Napoleon was not a greater soldier than Genghis Khan, nor did he exercise rule over a greater empire.

The Mongolian race was using the mariner's compass when Western nations were picking their way along the coast by the stars, says Leslie's. They had printed books when Europe was steeped in primal ignorance and were wearing silks and drinking tea from porcelain cups when our ancestors were roaming naked or clad in skins, and for household utensils had but the crudest of vessels.

Japan is in no way ashamed of a Mongolian ancestry. Whether she is of such ancestry, however, is another question. In any case, discrimination on the basis of race without consideration of individual merit is an injustice unworthy of any civilized nation. And so Japan asks only for the same rights and privileges as America already concedes to negroes, Turks, red Indians and other races of her population.

Are not all the best Americans at this moment rather ashamed that a highly civilized nation like the Japanese should be put to the humiliation of having to make formal request for the common rights already conceded other aliens? The dragging in of Mexico as a "red herring" in the discussion is likewise somewhat unfortunate, as the inference is without basis of fact.

More than half of the world's population lives in the tropics of the old world. Under British rule alone there are more than 225,000,000 tropical natives.

Resinol Soap clears pimply skins

Bathe your face for several minutes with Resinol Soap and hot water, working the creamy lather into the skin gently with the finger-tips. Wash off with Resinol Soap and more hot water. Finish with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing, antiseptic Resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear, fresh and velvety.

Resinol Soap is sold by all grocers. For sample (free), write to Dept. 6-7, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

DOAK OPPOSES. COOPER IN FINAL WITH THE PIRATES

Crowd of 800 Out to See Huggins' Men in Last Appearance of Season in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 30.—Manager Huggins sent Doak against Pittsburgh in the Cardinals' final appearance of the season here. Cooper was on the mound for the Pirates.

The game drew 800 fans. Eason and Quigley were the umpires.

THE BATTING ORDER.
CARDINALS: Doak, 1; Huggins, 2; Miller, 3; Wilson, 4; Snyder, 5; Butler, 6; Beck, 7; Doak, 8.

FIRST INNING.
CARDINALS—Doak flied to Carey. Huggins singled to right. Magee flied to Kelley. Miller got an infield single. Huggins stopped at second. Wilson flied to Kelley. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.
CARDINALS—Snyder walked. Cooper batted toward Koney, who got the runner. Snyder going to second. Doak struck out. NO RUNS.

COACH STAGG DIRECTS PLAY FROM MOTOR CYCLE
CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Unable to walk because of an attack of neuritis, Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago football eleven prepared today to assume active charge of the squad and direct the play while perched on the seat of a motor cycle.

The veteran coach, who had been confined to his home for 30 days, made his first appearance this year at the football field following his charges around the field on a motor cycle. This season is the first in 25 years that Stagg has failed to be on the field at the beginning of the practice work. Stagg asserted that his condition was showing improvement.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Battle of the Styles.
FOOTBALL this year is a battle of styles. Whether it is easier to gain THROUGH the enemy or OVER him, is the problem to be determined, with a majority of coaches leaning toward the overhead or aerial game, as being the line of least resistance—and minimum doctor bill.

This means that forward passes, field and wide-open plays, with just enough line attack to keep the defense from setting, will be popular with our best elucidators of play.

Famous Leaders Favor Old Style
BUT not with all of them—those "hard and low boys" of the old army days die reluctantly. Some of them never took up and therefore haven't seen this overhead thing yet. Nor are these men of slight stature, some of the best-known field generals of past times being now lined up for the close formations.

Not least among these is Foster Sanford, member of the rules committee, former advisory coach at Yale, coach at Columbia and now coach of the Rutgers team, which Princeton defeated Saturday, 12-0.

Back to the Middle Ages!
SANFORD, in the Tiger game Saturday, according to reports, used as his chief ground-gainer a close formation—a veritable sardine arrangement. His linemen crowded as close together as possible, the quarter established a direct line of communication with the snapperback, while the heavy guns in the backfield were coupled in as close as the rules permitted. This, in the correct, a truly medieval football formation, antedating the present century.

In this "Doc" Reilly is O. K. The battle of the styles, therefore, would seem to find its logical end in the merging of the new and the old.

Dying by Inches.
MR. REILLY, the hustling Director of Athletics at the Kansas City A. C., justly criticizes St. Louis for its action, which has resulted in apathy toward athletics, even in Kansas City. Heavily from W. A. P. means the Kansas Cityans no longer feel any incentive to train for future events.

In this "Doc" Reilly is O. K. The original athletic sloths of the world make place, and the only sign of activity and hustle has been at the Columbia Athletic Club. Competition is the life of athletics, or anything else. Without it the Western Division will soon become a nonentity.

Talbot Bars the Way.
If Doc Reilly wants to see an awakened interest, he can do one thing—that is, give Lee Talbot a rest. The big dispenser of weights is good for 20 points in any Western meet he enters—a discouraging handicap for rivals. In fact, it must be admitted.

All Over—the Braves Win.
If there was ever a doubt that the Braves would win the world's series it is dispelled now. Hank O'Day's "ONCE" is a sure bet. Incidentally, after reading about Hank, we feel certain that HE FEELS CERTAIN of an American League umpiring job next year.

Real Nerve Needed Here.
COACH YOST's idea of testing the nerve of his football men was to give them a ride in an aeroplane. Why not send them against John McGraw with the question: When are the Braves going to crack? The question should always be fired from the bomb-proof.

Net Loss of $20,000.
But the war has cost the Cards money in other respects. For instance: Had there been no war, Hug would have received long ago such men as Butler, Williams, O'Connor, C. Miller and possibly Niehaus, excess baggage. He might have realized $10,000 on the sale of these men. Incidentally he would have been relieved of their salaries, which are by no means light. Altogether the presence of these men on the

HUGGINS WRITES FRIENDS HE WILL NOT LOSE A MAN

Cardinals' Manager Not Perturbed Over Report of Federal League's New Raid

By W. J. O'Connor.

That unauthorized report from Pittsburgh that Lee Magee, Ivey Wingo and Cozy Dolan had flied to the Federal League is totally at variance with a letter written by Manager Miller Huggins to one of his friends in St. Louis. This note, dated from New York, dismisses the possibility of a Fed raid on the Cardinals with the challenge: "Will bet a $15 suit of clothes we don't lose a ball player."

Hug is anything but a gambler and usually plays a sure thing. However, he seems eminently satisfied that he will hold his club intact and because of his confidence the recent report that Polly Peritt had signed with the Pittsfield has been discredited.

Huggins planned to sign all his men while on the current Eastern trip. Official notification has been given that Willie Doak, premier pitcher of the League, has accepted terms, but nothing has been said of Magee, Wingo, Dolan and a few of the recruits.

Magee Has a Two-Year Contract
Wingo's contract expires at the end of this season. Magee's contract has another year to run, but it contains the 10-day clause, which is admitted illegal, although Marsans has been unable to establish that fact in court. However, Magee is said to receive a salary somewhere in the neighborhood of $6,000, which will be increased 20 per cent if the club finishes 1-2-3-4. Besides that, he stands a chance of getting at least $10,000 home out of the fall series with the Browns. The point is that Magee has been enticed away for less than $10,000 a year, or its equivalent in cash bonus and salary—a prize the tottering Federal League hardly is able to meet.

Hug Must Stand for Tap.
This is a time of baseball war and the club owners must stand the tap. Some may call it a "holdup," but it is a condition which must be met and if Magee gives Huggins a chance to meet the offer from the Federal League, Hug will have only himself to blame if Magee gets away. It is assumed that Magee will give Hug a chance, and if further is assumed that Hug, although realizing that Magee's demands are absolutely exorbitant, will meet them because he has no alternative. No one really can blame Magee, Wingo or Dolan for getting all the money they can for it's a certainty that when peace again prevails salaries will be sliced to the core.

Net Loss of $20,000.

Fullback Le Gore Is Find of the Year at Yale; Is Star Punter
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 30.—Harry Le Gore, the fullback, is the find of the year so far this season at Yale Field. He has been showing up well in practice and did excellent work in the Maine game, and now at the beginning of the fourth week of practice he is showing conclusively that Pampall and Gengsey, as soon as the latter is eligible, will have to show much more than they have so far been able to in order to get the position away from him.

Le Gore is an excellent punter and continues accuracy with distance in his kicks. His punts are hard to get down under. He is also good at kicking from placement, and Dr. Bull is developing him as a drop kicker. But it is in forward passing that he is showing the greatest promise. This has been shown in the daily practice as well as the Maine game. This is his first year on the varsity squad. Last year he played on the freshman eleven. Another excellent new man is Jim Sheldon, the guard.

Wolverines Overmatched Today.
ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 28.—The University of Michigan game with the Denaw eleven here this afternoon marked the opening of Michigan's 1914 football season. There were few predictions as to what the result would be. Several of Coach Yost's most promising candidates were out of the game because of minor injuries sustained in practice scrimmages.

St. Louis Discard's Double Clinches Flag for Braves

Recruit Pitcher Holds the Cubs

Stallings' Men Supply the Usual Sensation in the Climax of the Most Sensational Season in the History of National League Pennant Race.

By John E. Wray.

TO cap the season of surprises in the National League it remained for these most surprising Braves to clinch the pennant on the two-base hit of a St. Louis Cardinal discard, Whitted, whose drive scored the winning run in the game against the Cubs at Boston, yesterday, score 3 to 2.

Braves have a nine-game lead on the Giants, who have only eight more games to play.

The game itself was as sensational as the team's wonderful season. The Braves won on three hits and with a recruit pitcher, Tom Hughes of the Rochester club—not "Long" Tom—appearing in his first big league game for the Bostonians. Hughes gave two bases on balls and allowed five hits.

Boston's first run came on four bases on balls, followed by a run that was squeezed across the plate. This last run meant victory, as the game turned out.

The Braves' batters worked Chicago to a finish, 11 of them gaining thirty or more passes. Evers obtained one in the ninth, when the goorv was tied, and came home on the Whitted double, clinching at least the short end of the world's series.

The Braves Wonderful Dash.

The dash of the Braves, which reached a successful climax on Tuesday, began on July 3 with a double-header victory, and has since proceeded at a most astonishing rate and with wonderful consistency. July 4 the club's percentage was .700. To-day it is .711, a gain of 27 points in three months.

The club has traveled at the rate of approximately 500 feet per day. For from "cracking," as predicted by John McGraw, it has improved steadily. Its record since returning East from a successful Western campaign has been 23 victories and four defeats, or a percentage of .846.

Not a club it has met but has suffered a setback at its hands. It has won with good pitching, bad pitching, regular pitching and take-a-chance pitching. James, the main reliance, has pitched games that would have beaten any other club in the league, yielding as high as 12 hits in victorious contests.

The Punch in the Pinch.

The team has won close to 25 games by a margin of one run since the three months' dash began, while numberless victories have been captured after the enemy gained the lead.

The team has been expected to crack, but three times it has outgamed the Cardinals, when the faltering of one of

WORLD'S SERIES OPENS AT SHIBE PARK ON OCT. 9

Connie Mack Wins Coin Toss and Elects to Play First Two Games in Philadelphia.

2 GAMES IN EACH CITY

Klem, Byron, Dinneen and Hildebrand Are Umpires Named for Coming Classic.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—The first two games between the Philadelphia Americans and Boston Nationals for the baseball championship of the world will be played in Philadelphia on Oct. 9 and 10.

The third and fourth games will be played in Boston, Oct. 11 and 12. The fifth game will be played in Philadelphia, Oct. 13, and the sixth game in Boston, Oct. 14. More than five games are necessary to decide the series.

The game was decided here today at a meeting of the National Baseball Commission.

The umpires will be Klem and Byron of the National League and Dinneen and Hildebrand of the American League. There will be three official scorers: J. G. T. Spink of St. Louis and one man to be picked by Philadelphia, baseball writers and one by Boston writers.

No changes were made in the rules for playing world's series games. As heretofore, four games must be won by a club to claim the championship. In the event of a seventh game being necessary, the toss of a coin after the sixth contest will decide whether the last shall be played in Boston or Philadelphia. In case of a tie game or a postponement, the clubs will remain in the city where the game was scheduled to be played until it is decided. The prices for seats in both cities are:

Box Seats to Be $5

Boston—Boxes, $5 each seat; grand stand, $3; pavilions, reserved, $2; general admission, $1. In Boston the 25-cent bleacher seats will be 50 cents. Tickets will be sold in each city for a series of three games. In the event that a game is unplayed the money for that game will be refunded. The players eligible to participate in the series are:

Boston—Cather, Coker, Connolly, Cottrill, Crutcher, Davis, Deane, Devore, Dugue, Evers, Gilbert, Gowdy, Hess, James, Maranville, Mann, Martin, Mitchell, Moran, Rudolph, Schmidt, Smith, Strand, Tyler, Whitted, Whitted, Total, 20.

Philadelphia—Baker, Barry, Bender, Bressler, Bush, Coffman, Coombs, Davies, Davis, Kopt, Lacy, Kavyo, McInnis, Murphy, Oldring, Pennock, Plank, Schnap, Shawkey, Strunk, Thomas, Thompson, Walsh, Wyckoff, Total, 24.

Three members of the National Commission were present. The Boston club was represented by President Gaffney, and President Shibe and Connie Mack looked after Philadelphia's interests.

Connie Mack Wins Toss.

When it came to tossing the coin to decide where the first two games should be played, Chairman Herrmann of the National Commission "flipped" a silver dollar, and Mr. Gaffney called "tail." The coin dropped head up and Connie Mack, with a smile, said:

"Philadelphia, 9 and 10."

Applicants for press tickets will apply to Joseph M. McCready in Philadelphia for Shibe Park reservations and to Ralph E. McMullen in Boston for Fenway Park seats.

The National Commission also arranged the details for the intercity series between the New York National and American League clubs and the two major league teams in Chicago.

The umpires for the New York games will be Evans and Connolly of the American League and Kier and Hildebrand of the National. American League umpires for the Chicago series will be O'Loughlin and Chilly. National League representatives will be Eason and Quigley.

St. Louis Women to Handle Their Own Golf Events

Eight pairs played in the first round of match play in the championship class of the women's city golf tournament yesterday afternoon on the Normandy Golf Club links. The same number of matches were also played in classes A and B. Incidentally not a single surprise was noted.

Four title matches will be played this afternoon in the second round. Those who were defeated in the championship flight yesterday will today compete in the consolation.

The feature match of today should be that between Mrs. Lansing Ray and Mrs. Louis P. Aice.

The St. Louis Women's Golf Association, the newest member of the National Golf Association, was created yesterday afternoon at the Normandy Club. The women in future will take care of their own tournaments, instead of leaving them to the men to attend to.

Today's Championship Pairings:

Mrs. Lansing Ray vs. Mrs. Louis P. Aice. Mrs. Fred Hattersley vs. Mrs. A. N. Edwards.

Mrs. F. E. Newberry vs. Mrs. Thomas H. West Jr.

Mrs. Fred P. Aice vs. Miss Laura Kaiser.

Yesterday's Championship Pairings:

Mrs. L. P. Aice defeated Miss Ruth Brown, 5 up and 4. Miss Laura Kaiser defeated Mrs. A. R. Deacon, 6 up and 4. Mrs. T. H. West defeated Mrs. L. B. Stephens, 4 up and 3. Mrs. F. E. Newberry defeated Mrs. T. P. Bates, 5 up and 3. Mrs. L. N. Edwards defeated Mrs. C. W. Souder, 4 up and 3. Mrs. L. Lansing Ray defeated Mrs. George M. V. 5 up and 3. Mrs. A. N. Edwards defeated Mrs. Fred Sullivan, 4 up and 3. Mrs. Fred Plant defeated Mrs. T. P. Bates, 5 up and 3.

McGraw's Fallen Champs Will Play Series With Yanks, Starting Oct. 8

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Just about one hour after the Giants had lost the final game of the series to the Pirates at the Polo grounds yesterday, and relinquished whatever chance they had of capturing the National League pennant, it was announced that a city series between the three-time winners of the National League championship and the chanceless Highlanders would take place.

Huggins and Britton Agree on Terms for a New One-Year Contract

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 30.—ILLER HUGGINS and President Schuyler Britton have agreed to terms whereby the "Rabbit" will be manager of the club next season. Huggins returned to agree to more than one year. The document will be signed as soon as drawn up.

MY friends, on this September morn the Tiger's tail in knots is worn.

The leopard cannot change his spots, Nor Tiger's the their tails in knots.

But Ricker's boys were on the spot To tie the necessary knot.

They manuevered the Tiger's paws, And deftly trimmed his cruel claws.

It looked as though, alas, aloack! T. Raymond Cobb was going back.

He gave the ball a healthy clout And didn't even run it out.

He forced a man at second base, Then to the bench he turned his face.

Is this the temperamental Ty Who whined the butcher in the eye?

Or has the scintillating Cobb An understudy on the job?

Hoppe Too Much for Briton, at Balk-Line Game

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Melbourne Inman, British billiard champion, and William Hoppe, world's balk-line champion, will resume play in their mixed match here today. This afternoon and evening the men will play on the 6x12 English table at the English game.

Last night Hoppe, who was off badly in the opening block of English style game, came back strongly in the two matches played yesterday at the American style, winning the afternoon match 500 to 107 and the evening match 500 to 188. The victories make the total score stand Hoppe 1304, Inman 87. Hoppe ran out his first game in 17 innings and his evening contest in 25 innings, making his lowest average 20.

Hoppe has shown ability to count off at American style than the Boston had at the English style, insuring the Yankee an eventual victory.

McLeod, Knocked Down, Recovers and Puts Out Joe Kelly of St. Paul

Joe Kelly, St. Paul featherweight, was unable to weather more than four rounds of the storm of hooks, swings and straight drives sent to his head and body by aggressive Archie McLeod, and in the fifth of what was to have been an eight-round bout at the Tower Social A. C. last night, McLeod put his opponent down and out with a right to the jaw and a short left hook to the solar plexus.

McLeod did not have as easy sailing as he thought he would, however, and in the third and fourth rounds was momentarily sent to his knees as a result of not being able to remove his jaw from the path of fast-traveling right-hand punches. He only bowed in the harder and gradually came down the St. Paul boxer's defense and was able to register a "knock." Barney McCarthy refereed. Harold Eaton and Joe Whitman, also featherweights, were in the semi-windup, which was stopped by Pierce Matthews, referee of the preliminary, in the fourth round when Whitman was groggy. Bob Evans and "Fighting" Biddle fought four rounds to a draw. The clubhouse was crowded to the limit.

5000 Match Race at Columbus.
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 30.—The match race between Directum 1 and the unbeaten William will be one of the features for the afternoon at the grand circuit meeting here. A purse of $5000, subscribed by the association, will go to the winner.

Glen Echo Golf Champ Yields to Princeton Star

Walter Kobusch, former Princeton star, further established himself as the dark horse of the Glen Echo golf championships yesterday by defeating R. W. Fullerton, club champion, 6 up and 5 in the third round of the tournament. Kobusch first attracted attention by turning in the low qualifying score. Later he eliminated C. J. Eason, and the golfers began to sit up and take notice. His victory over the club champion was decisive yesterday. The remainder of the third round matches will be played off Saturday afternoon.

Seventeen Golfers From St. Louis Competing in State Golf Tournament

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 30.—Seventeen golfers from St. Louis competed in the qualifying round of the State golf tournament, which opened here today. Nearly one hundred players in all were in evidence, by far the largest number of which were from St. Joseph. The present champion, J. C. Thorne of Kansas City, was a Kaw City contestant.

SUBWAY

CIGARMAKERS' SMOKERS

QUALITY FIRST - NO STYLE

5¢ each $50.00 per 1000

SUBWAY, the New Creation, full 6 inches long, has arrived. It has caused the greatest sensation in the history of cigar making. It's going to revolutionize cigar smoking. The illustration shows the SUBWAY exactly as you get it for 5c. each, $50.00 per 1000.

SUBWAY A Two for a Quarter Smoke for a Nickel

If they had finished heads—tucks—fancy bands, and were packed in pretty boxes, with lithographed labels, you would have to pay 25c. for two.

Everything sacrificed for quality.

We have left off the fancy trimmings, all the frills and ornate decorations—they don't add to the quality of the cigar, but do add to the cost. We've put only the real ripe, fragrant tobacco into the cigar. They're crude—rolled exactly as the cigar maker rolls his smoker but they're delightfully fragrant.

SUBWAY is a mild smoke. What it lacks in appearance it more than makes up in quality, aroma, smoothness, taste and quantity.

Before the day is over everybody will be smoking SUBWAYS. Swing in line and get the sensation of being in Havana for sixty minutes—by smoking a SUBWAY.

For every man's taste and purse. Not for men who want to economize or have to, but for all men who want the very best smoke. 5c. each, $50.00 per 1000.

Every Cigarmaker's smoker is not a SUBWAY. Insist on a SUBWAY. For sale everywhere.

BANKRUPT SENTENCED

TO SIX MONTHS IN JA

Isadore Good Failed to Turn Over $2000 to Trustee as Ordered by the Court.

Isadore Good, formerly proprietor men's furnishing store at 1723 First avenue, today was sentenced by Judge of the U. S. District Court months in the St. Charles court for failing to turn over to his trustee in bankruptcy $3000 ordered by the court.

Good went into involuntary bankruptcy in November, 1912. In the meantime, before Referee Walter D. Coley, stated that he did not satisfactorily account for the months in the St. Charles court for failing to turn over to his trustee in bankruptcy $3000 ordered by the court.

Good went into involuntary bankruptcy in November, 1912. In testimony before Referee Walter D. Coley last week, Good admitted that he did not satisfactorily account for his expenditures. He said that he had paid from $15 to $25 per day for drinks and breakfasts.

Coley, in his report to the Court, stated that Good evidently had retained much more in his possession from the assets. The Court then ordered Good to turn this amount over to his trustee.

SMATTER POP?

A Complete Rout!

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch
By C. M. PAYNE.

The Jarr Family

By ROY L. MCCORDELL.

The Day of Miracles Is Not Past.—Ed. Jarr.

"WELL, how fortunate!" cried Mr. Michael Angelo Dinkston. "How very fortunate, indeed!" And he seized Mr. Jarr's hand and shook it most cordially.

"Then Mr. Jarr endeavored to shake Mr. Dinkston more or less cordially, for he knew if there was anything fortunate in their meeting it was rather for Mr. Dinkston."

"I'm in a hurry, along!" said Mr. Jarr, affecting the bustling business man method of getting rid of an unwelcome company.

"Well, I'm in no hurry, so I'll accompany you!" said Mr. Dinkston cheerfully.

He was one of the best companions in Mr. Jarr's social set. He could accompany you on foot, in vehicles or on the plane.

"Ah, nothing like a brisk walk!" remarked Mr. Dinkston, after they had sprinted down the street for a few blocks in silence.

"Nothing like a good brisk walk at the end of a day's work of a dapper appetite for one's dinner."

Mr. Dinkston a search-shabby though cheer-proclaimed being a bachelor in our clubs."

Mr. Jarr could not guess, but he left the erudite Dinkston believe he conveyed the impression it was social clubs, where a man might dine and sleep and sign for it in solitary splendor.

Mr. Jarr had a shrewd idea that if he brought the poet home to dinner unannounced Mrs. Jarr wouldn't be pleased.

"Ah, beautiful autumn weather! Autumn autumn, I call it!" said the blithe poet. "Look at the splendor in the sky! The minted gold Aurora scatters as her largesse to the departing day!"

"Well, I'm glad Aurora has minted gold to scatter as her largesse," grumbled Mr. Jarr. He was making the last—or rather the first—desperate maneuver a man makes when he sees an impoverished friend approaching. He began to heat Mr. Dinkston to it with a hard luck story.

"By George! I don't know what I'm going to do if things keep up this way!" he moaned. "You see me walking home, don't you?"

"Yes, but the distance is not a short one and the walk will do you good," replied Mr. Dinkston. "Best thing for a fouter for an auto!"

"Well, I couldn't give a fouter for an auto if autos were selling three for a cent. Anyway, I don't know what extra I'll grumble Mr. Jarr."

"A fouter is Shakespearean," began Mr. Dinkston.

"There's no such make of car!" interrupted Mr. Jarr. "Anyway, I was going to say that I never was so hard up in my life."

"What nonsense!" cried Mr. Dinkston. "What nonsense! You, with a good position, good health, a happy home—why, you are a millionaire!"

"How long may my position last, eh?" asked Mr. Jarr. "As for good health, that only means a hearty appetite and with the present high prices of food it's fatal to have a good appetite."

"I tell you the depression, the financial depression, is only physiological," replied the blithe Dinkston. "And your depression is physical! You should get out into the open air more, inspire deep, aspirate high!"

"That's easy enough for you to say, who haven't a responsibility!" And Mr. Jarr came near adding "or a dollar."

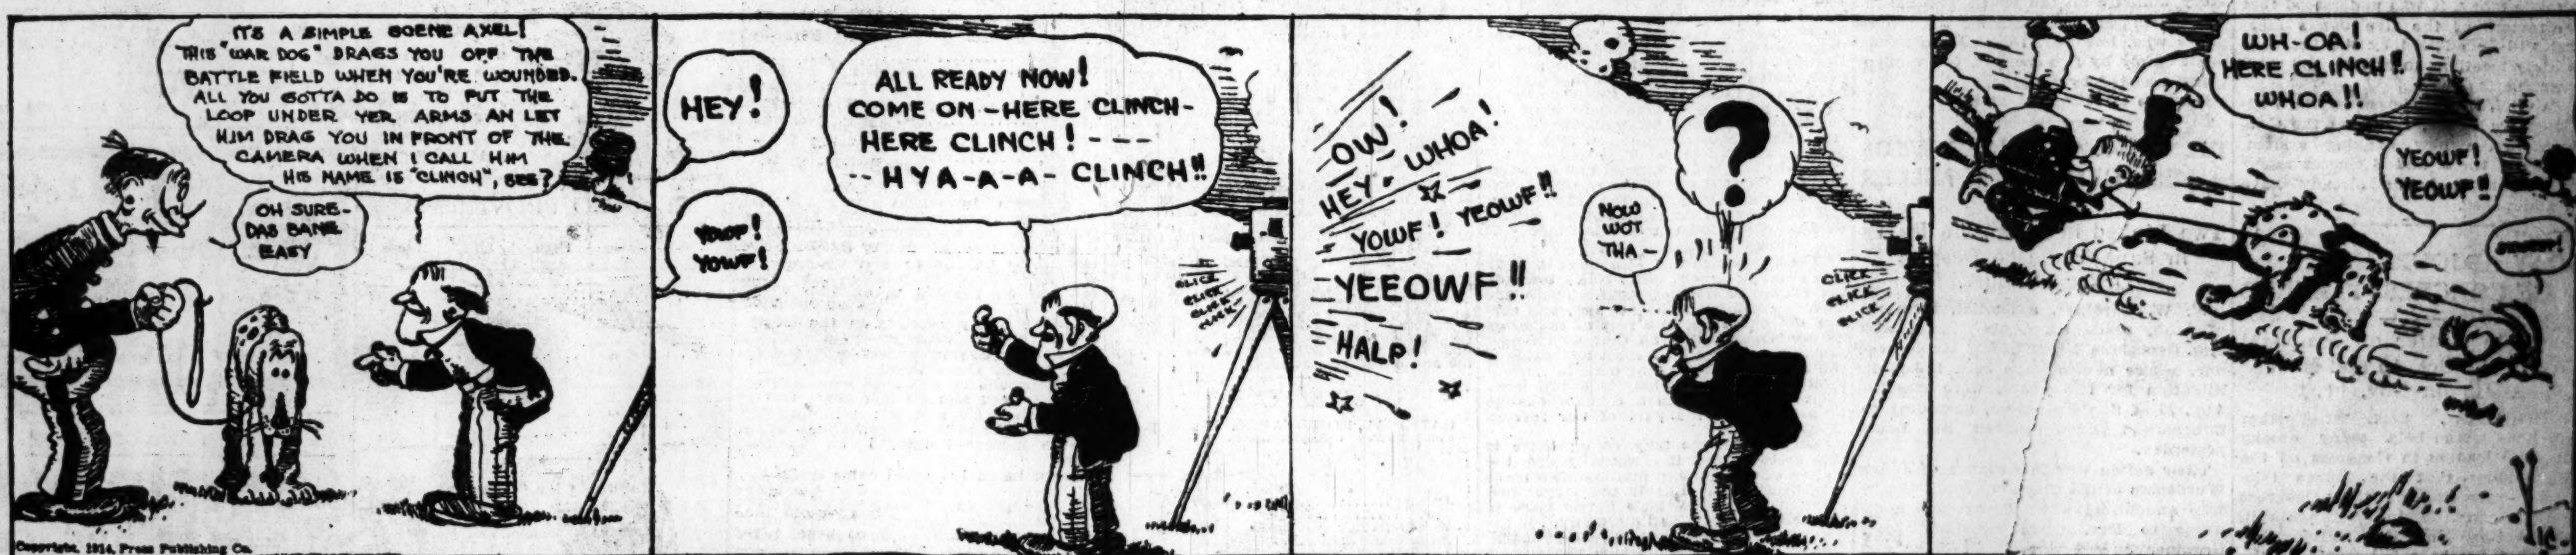

"But I have responsibilities! I have great responsibilities and I joy in them!" cried the poet. "I have my friends to help and cheer."

"I wish you'd cheer me then," said Mr. Jarr, thinking this would be a parting shot and he could get rid of the unwelcome optimist. "I am nearly crazy wondering who I can borrow some money from."

Mr. Dinkston burst into a peal of laughter. "Worrying about a little thing like that?" he asked. "Why, here I am!" And to Mr. Jarr's surprise Mr. Dinkston handed him a roll of bills. "Oh, don't thank me," added the optimist. "I would have only lost it. There's a big hole in the pocket it was in."

A Frequent Caller.

A SWELLISH young man was cutting a dash at a seaside hotel. At the dinner table a quiet looking gentleman sitting opposite him said:
"How do you do, Mr. Jones?"
"Oh, I am quite well," replied the young man haughtily, "but I really do not recognize you."
"Dear me," said the gentleman, "and yet I used to call very frequently at your mother's house."
"Indeed?"
"Yes, I was there every week, and your mother always gave me a cordial invitation to call again."
"And who are you, may I ask?"
"I am the tax collector."

When the Pig Died.

IT was the kindly custom in the village for the well-to-do inhabitants to make good any loss which the village might sustain through the death of any live stock. The retired manufacturer who had only recently settled in the village was ignorant of this laudable proceeding, and was considerably puzzled by the visit of a laborer's wife, who explained that she had lost a pig.

"Well, I ain't got it," explained the bewildered sawbones.
"What I mean, sir, is, of course, the pig died," nervously explained the woman.
"Well, what do you want me to do?" cried the thoroughly exasperated man, "send a wreath?"

Rather Expert.

BUSINESS Man (to applicant for situation): Can you write short-hand?
Applicant: Yes, sir.
Business Man: How many words a minute?
Applicant: I've never counted, but the day my wife found in my pocket some letters I'd forgotten to post for her I took down every word she uttered as fast as she said them.
Business Man: You'll do.

His Last Act.

JUDGE: You are accused of killing your best friend.
Prisoner: He hit me, sir.
Judge: I should have thought that that would have been the last thing he would do.
Prisoner: It was, sir.

Resourceful.
